TEN DOLLARS A TON

Probable Price of Coal the Coming Winter.

The Anthrocite Fields Controlled by a Monopoly.

Nobody on the Outside to Cut Rates.

The Combine is the Most Complete Ever Formed.

Pennsylvania, Reading, Lackawanna, Delaware and Hudson, Under Vanderbilt, Put a Cast Iron Seal on the Coal Conspiracy.

New York, Aug. 10.—The World this morning in an editorial says: "When the coal conspiracy was formed the Pennsylvania railroad posed as its antagonist. Upon that fact mainly was based the hope that the power of the "combine" to levy upon the people would be limited.

"But the Pennsylvania company has yielded to the superior power of the combined corporations and permitted its suits to drop.

"The coal agents of the company have joined in every advance made in prices and have adhered to list prices with a faithfulness never shown by them when prices were regulated by agreement.

"However sincere the Pennsylvania may have been in its original opposition it is plainly in the conspiracy as much as Reading, Lehigh and New Jersey Central. It may have been in it from the first, its hostility being only a part of the plan with which it sought to hoodwink the public.

'Lackawanna, too, has been forced in—or seemingly forced. Deleware & Hudson, unedr Vanderbilt control, acts in entire harmony with the "combine."

"In brief, the monopoly of the anthracite coal trade is now absolute.

"Not a bushel of coal can be brought to market except by the combination.

"There is nobody to cut any price which the conspirators may see fit to fix, and there is no power apparently to prevent the combination from increasing the price of coal to $10 a ton or even a higher figure.

"There is but one cloud upon the conspirators' horizon. The suit which Attorney General Stockton, of New Jersey, has brought, and which he seems determined to push to the end, challenges the legality of the fundamental agreements upon which the whole structure rests.

"In the outcome of that suit alone there is a ray of hope for the people.

"If that fails every consumer of coal must make up his mind to pay whatever tribute the little band of enormously rich conspirators may see fit to exact until new and more effectual legislation shall furnish relief or supply at least a method of resistance.

COMMITTED SUICIDE.

A Retired Contractor Drinks an Ounce of Laudanum.

Boston, Aug. 10.—Patrick Morrison, a retired contractor, aged 67, died yesterday from the effects of an overdose of laudanum.

Morrison had been drinking heavily of late, and on Monday went into a drug store and purchased an ounce of laudanum which he said was for a child suffering with toothache.

Going home he swallowed the contents of the bottle. Medical aid was summoned and antidotes administered, but he was beyond medical aid.

GEORGE A. LEACH.

A Prominent Man in News Circles is Dead.

New York, Aug. 10.—George A. Leach, the manager of the International Telegram company, died at his home this morning, 310 West One Hundred and Twenty-eighth street, of Bright's disease, from which he had been a sufferer for some time.

He was about 60 years of age. Mr. Leach has been prominently identified with various news associations for the past thirty years. He was at one time the London agent of the Associated Press.

SONS OF VETERANS.

Report of Commander-in-Chief Wells Upon the Growth of the Order.

Helena, Mont., Aug. 10.—The session of the national encampment, Sons of Veterans, yesterday, was devoted entirely to reading the reports of officers, which were properly referred. Commander-in-Chief Wells, in his report, recommends that hereafter the sessions of the encampment be triennial instead of annual and extending the term of officers. Referring to the growth of the order, the report says:

"The early date of holding this encampment renders it impossible to make any comparison other than upon the membership for the quarters ending September 30, 1891, December 31, 1891, and March 31, 1892. Although there were reported to be 54,728 members in good standing and 10,861 members suspended at the close of June 6, 1891, the quarterly report received by this administration within one year after assuming command showed only 50,879 members in good standing, with 11,793 members suspended.

"The report for the quarter ending December 31, 1890, showed 53,519 members in good standing and 5,756 members suspended, while the report for the corresponding quarter in 1891 shows 53,807 members in good standing and 7,350 members suspended. It is especially noticeable that the larger divisions are as a rule the ones that show the least improvement; in fact, many of them show a loss."

THREATENED HIS LIFE.

Alderman McMasters the Target of the Cranks.

Pittsburg, Aug. 10.—In Alderman McMasters' mail yesterday an annoymous letter, which had been posted in New York City, at 12 m., on Monday, was found. The letter was inclosed in a small envelope. It was written in a cramped and pushed hand, probably disguised. The letter read:

"Alderman McMasters, Pittsburg, Pa., Dear Sir:—Some time this week a party of men will leave here and will try to kill you and Supt. Frick again."

Alderman McMasters has been in Michigan for two weeks. His mail is opened by his constable, Joseph Webber. The anonymous letter was turned over to the alderman's attorney.

The lawyer read it several times, and, throwing it aside, said: "I suspect that letter was written here and sent to New York to be mailed."

All the attorneys engaged in prosecuting the Homestead rioters have within a week received several letters of a threatening character, but they have little if any fear from a threat coming from a man who is afraid to sign his name. Alderman McMasters is not expected to return to Pittsburg for ten days.

PATTISON'S GREAT CODE.

Business of Great Importance Transacted.

A Long-Needed Work to be Done During the Summer Months.

Washington, D. C., Aug. 10.—Just as Speaker Crisp's gavel was about to fall the other night to declare the adjournment of congress, Representative Pattison, of Ohio, caught the speaker's eye and secured recognition for half a minute.

He presented a resolution directing the appointment of a special committee to sit during the recess and codify the pension laws. As everyone was anxious to adjourn no attention was paid to Pattison's resolution and it went through without dissent.

Mr. Pattison has since been appointed chairman of the committee and he explains that the resolution thus hastily passed promises to secure important benefits in bringing order out of the chaotic condition of the pension laws. "The public has no idea what a tangle our pension laws are in," said Mr. Pattison, to-day. "To a very large extent the pension system is not based on laws at all, but is made up of a vast accumulation of decisions by the pension bureau. Even the lawyer has great difficulty in finding out what a pension claimant is entitled to. Our committee on invalid pensions is made up of lawyers, but when a pension bill comes before us there was not a man on the committee who could tell what the claimant was entitled to under the regular law. We would have to refer the clerk, who would go first to the law and would then dig through a network of decisions to see how the law had been construed. I suppose nine-tenths of the so-called pension laws have been enacted by pension officials.

"I now intend to carry out a plan I have long had of codifying all these laws and decisions in such a simple form that any novice can understand them. The Ohio code of laws gives a good model and will probably serve as a plan on which this codification will be made. According to that plan each pension law would be given in full and wherever a sentence or paragraph had been affected by the department decision there would be a foot note giving the syllabus of the decision. In that way the law and all its construction would be clearly set forth without having to dig through department decisions in order to find out how the law has been construed. The committee will assemble frequently in Washington during the recess and the codification may be complete by the time congress reassembles."

FROM A MEDICAL COLLEGE.

A Coroner Alarmed Over an Ordinary Find.

Dunkirk, N. Y., Aug. 10.—The badly decomposed body of a man was found tied up in a grain sack, on the beach about two miles west of Van Buren yesterday. The coroner was notified and an examination made. There was no means of identification. The head was missing and the large bones of the body were broken and sawed, evidently to allow the crowding of the body into the sack. The remains were buried on the beach.

LOST ON THE LAKE.

Two Men go Yachting and Never Return.

Port Huron, Mich., Aug. 10.—It is feared that Fred Gorman, editor of the Sarnia Observer, and Charles McKenzie, a prominent hardware merchant of Sarnia, have been lost on Lake Huron. Their sail boat is supposed to have capsized Monday, as no trace of them can be found. The tug Haight left yesterday afternoon in search of the missing yachtsmen.

THE IRON HALL TREASURER.

Mr. Somerby May Prefer Charges of Irregularity Against Him.

Indianapolis, Aug. 10.—It is reported that Justice F. D. Somerby will prefer charges against Supreme Cashier Mark Davis, of the Order of the Iron Hall, charging him with gross irregularities and with conspiring to have the receivership litigation begun. The examination of the books shows a result more favorable to Somerby than to Davis.

KING WILL NOT HANG.

Governor Buchanan Commutes the Sentence.

Memphis, Tenn., Aug. 10.—Governor Buchanan, in Nashville, commuted the sentence of Colonel H. Clay King, who was to have been hanged next Friday for the murder of David H. Posten on March 15 last, on a public street in this city.

OHIO PHOTOGRAPHERS.

Columbus, O., Aug. 10.—The Photographers' Association of Ohio begins a two-days' convention in this city to-day. The object of the association is to bind more closely together the business and social interests of the craft. Mr. Ford Lewis, of Celina, is president; L. H. Hume, of Lima, secretary; J. S. Schneider, first vice-president; J. J. Wolfe, second vice president; and J. C. Haring, of Massillon, treasurer.

AS MYSTERIOUS AS EVER.

No Developments in the Borden Case.

One of the Daughters on the Stand To-Day.

The Trund Full of Bloocy Cloths Sent to Boston—The Hunt for Evidence Continues.

Fall River, Mass., Aug. 10.—To-day the interest in the Borden murder case is centering around the central police station where the inquest is still going on.

Miss Borden was driven to the station this morning in a closed carriage, accompanied by her friend, Mrs. Brigham, and City Marchal Hilliard.

She looked much brighter eyed than she has at any time since the day following the murder. She walked firmly across the guard room and her face was without emotion of any kind. She was not as closely followed to-day as yesterday by curious crowds.

Prof. Wood, the analyst, appeared at the station early, in company with Medical Examiner Dolan. Shortly after the inquest was resume the two men were admitted and were behind closed doors about 20 minutes.

When they reappeared they were followed by a couple of policemen, carrying a trunk containing bloody clothing and other evidences of the crime. The trunks were placed on a coupe waiting at the door. Prof. Wood shook hands with the medical examiner and jumped into the coupe, directing the driver to go to the up-town station. There he took the 11:03 train for Boston and the trunk was checked for the same place. Mr. Dolan remained at the station a few minutes only.

It is now generally admitted that a great deal of hope is being placed in he accuracy of the analysis and the examination of the blood on the clothing. A few days ago this was not the case, the poison theory and other clues being talked of secondary importance.

Bridget Sullivan, the servant girl, did not leave her friends last night nor this morning. An officer who visited her found her in a much happier and more contented frame of mind than yesterday when she was prostrated with nervousness and grief. She talks in the most affectionate manner of the deceased woman, the stepmother of the girl's.

There is a strong feeling current in police circles against Inspector Hanscom and Mr. Jennings, counsel for the family. It is alleged that the former is endeavoring to build back fires to destroy the theories of the police and that they are inspiring clues that will tend to blind the actual facts preceding and succeeding the murders.

Miss Borden will be put on the rack to-day and sensational statements are looked for. Yesterday she was not pressed hard, according to a statement from official quarters, made this morning.

The police have again become active in the search after evidence and one or two details to the missing letter said to have been received by Mrs. Borden are again being sought by the officials.

District Attorney Knowlton is working under the direction of Attorney General Pillsbury, and it is said that the form of complaint and possibly all warrants will eb submitted to him. Much credit is being given in police circles to the work of Dr. Dolan, who has practically neglected a remunerative business since he was called on to act officially.

The only complaint against him is that his tongue will not wag to other than official inquisitors.

BOLIVIAN AFFAIRS.

Liberals Will Oppose President Baptista.

Both Sides Have Plenty of Arms, and Bloody Contests May Follow.

New York, Aug. 10.—The Herald's correspondent at La Paz, Bolivia, says that a revolution was started at Sucre and troops were at once sent from La Paz to suppress it. A general uprising is feared.

The liberal party openly avows its intention to oppose President-elect Baptista at all odds.

Details are hard to get at, owing to the embargo on telegraph lines.

The Indians are receiving arms through the Argentine Republic, and it is considered that Gen. Camacho will return and head the liberals and wage war against the clericals headed by President Baptista.

THE TREASURE TRAIN.

Safe Arrival in the Eastern Metropolis.

Extraordinary Time Made by the Train in Crossing the Continent.

New York, Aug. 10.—It was just twenty minutes to 11 o'clock yesterday morning when the now famous treasure train carrying $20,000,000 of Uncle Sam's gold coin from San Francisco to New York pulled into the Grand Central depot.

There was nothing unusual about the train to attract attention, but the unusual activity of official and the sight of armed men who emerged from the cars and surrounded the train when the engine had given its last puff and stood still, drew a small crowd about.

It was not generally known when the treasure train would arrive and those who learned what the commotion was all about glanced curiously at the proceedings, but at a respectable distance.

Second Assistant Postmaster General J. Lowry Bell was on hand to receive the treasure and drawn up in the enclosure were 14 mail wagons, the doors of which were opened to receive the gold for transportation to the subtreasury building on Wall sreet.

The postoffice department was responsible for the millions until safely deposited in the vault.

Thomas L. James, late postmaster general, was present when the train arrived, and watched with considerable interest when the six cars were switched back to a siding, and the work of unloading begun. The $20,000,000 was packed in 500 boxes, $40,000 to each box, which weighed 160 pounds. There were thirty-five boxes put in most of the wagons, the drivers of which were sworn United States mail drivers.

Two guards rode on each wagon on the journey to the subtreasury. The wagons were loaded five at a time. The train left San Francisco at 8 o'clock last Thursday evening, the journey to this city being made in 110 hours and 40 minutes. The last stop was at Buffalo, and from that point to New York the distance, 440 miles, was made in nine hours.

Assistant Treasurer H. H. Roberts, who has charge of the sub-treasury in this city, where the train load of gold will be safely stored away, said this morning: "Last night we had in the vaults $121,000,000, of which $46,000,000 was gold, so when the $20,000,000 which the train brings in is put in the vaults there will be $141,000,000 in the building. Although that is a large amount, it is by no means the largest amount we have had here at one time as within the past three years there was at one time over $205,000,000 in the vaults. I have no idea when the next shipment will be made from San Francisco."

The sub-treasury in Wall street is strongly fortified against any attack that may be made against it. There are four Gatling guns within its walls, in addition to a large number of rifles, revolvers, and grenades. It is connected with two police precinct station houses by direct wires and there are also two special wires for the fire department. There is always a large enough force of men on hand night and day to protect the treasure stowed in the vaults.

NOTES FROM TIFFIN.

A Fallen Woman's Determined Efforts to Die.

Tiffin, O., Aug. 10.—(Special)—Hattie Davis, a fallen woman, committed suicide in a low Market street resort last night, by taking morphine. The first dose was removed by a physician, but the woman was determined to die, and swallowed a second dose soon after. Her right name was Lydia A. Allen, and her mother, who resides in Dundas, Ont., has been notified.

Curtiss Burkert, residing two miles north of Bettsville, was fatally injured in a runaway last night, his head being crushed to a jelly.

At 4 o'clock this morning the office of the Echo, a new society journal, was destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of $1,000, with $600 insurance.

Dr. T. J. Livers died of Bright's disease this morning. He was 56 years old and a leading republican. He was local medical examiner of the pension department for the past twenty years.

WILL INVITE HIM IN.

Harrison Wants to Talk to Mr. Platt.

Loon Lake a Very Appropriate Place for the Meeting of the Two Men.

New York, Aug. 10.—The New York World says this morning that President Harrison will come to this city for a conference with the party leaders some time this month unless objection should be raised, which is not in sight now. Mr. Platt will be invited to visit Loon Lake within the next few days and will probably accept.

NEW CORPORATIONS.

Columbus, Aug. 10.—The following articles of incorporation were filed in the office of the secretary of state to-day: The Edgar Hydraulic Molding company, Columbus, capital stock $40,000; the Standard Piano company, Cincinnati, capital stock, $30,000; the Ohio Paste and Glue company, Cleveland, capital stock $15,000; the Sperry Electric Railway company, Cleveland, capital stock $250,000.

FATALLY STABBED.

Niagara Falls, N. Y., Aug. 10.—Another serious stabbing affray took place in the tunnel district yesterday afternoon. John Ritz, a Russian Pole, and Audrus Nessy, a Swede, became involved in a quarrel which resulted in Ritz being stabbed in the neck, back and other places in such a manner as to render his recovery doubtful. Nessy was arrested.

IN SECRET SESSION.

The Members of the Press Were Barred Out.

Conference Between the Iron Manufacturers and the Amalgamated Now Being Held.

Pittsburg, Aug. 10.—The conference between the iron manufacturers and scale committee of the Amalgamated association, did not resume until 10:30 this morning, the Amalgamated representatives being the tardy parties.

After half an hour's discussion of a motion to admit representatives of the press, it was decided to exclude them, and the conference went into secret session.

At 11 o'clock the manufacturers and Amalgamated wage committee adjourned till 4 p. m. Neither side would divulge one word for publication.

ESCAPED FROM JAIL.

Ballston, N. Y., Aug. 10.—Martin Foy, charged with murder, escaped from jail this morning. In some way he had opened his cell and was in the corridor. When Jailor Howland opened the door Foy darted past him and is still at large. Officers are looking for him in every direction.

SULPHURIC ACID.

Four Men Terribly Burned by It.

Worcester, Mass., Aug. 10.—Four employes of the Washburn & Moen wire mill at Quinsigamond village were horribly burned by sulphuric acid yesterday. The acid is used for cleaning copper wire and is forced into the annealing room through lead pipes.

Only a small amount of acid had been pumped from the tank when suddenly one side of the iron receptacle burst outward, throwing the awful fluid over the four men who were standing near.

All were severely burned. Their clothing was eaten off and the screams uttered were heartending. Two of the men tore off their clothes and jumped into the river. Alkalis were administered and later the wounded men were taken to the city hospital. At the hospital the men uttered awful cries while their wounds were being dressed, and their condition is very precarious.

FORCES COME TOGETHER.

Government Troops and Insurgents Meet.

The War in Honduras Continues, and the Situation Grows More Alarming Each Hour.

New Orleans, Aug. 10.—Letters from Honduras report a big battle in the interior, same say at Botijas, others at Danli, between the government and revolutionary forces. The latter were defeated and retreated towards Nicaragua.

At Ceiba, foreign residents complain that no notice was given of the intended bombardment and several innocent persons were killed. The residence and office of American consul, Tocca, were riddled with bullets, two men being shot on the premises. The stars and stripes were floating before and during the bombardment The residence of the agent of the Oteri American line, also had the American flag flying, but that, as well as the residences of the French and Spanish residents was badly wrecked by the bombardment.

A telegram from Gautemala yesterday announces another international complication. It arises from Capt. Challoner's steamship Oteri being refused the right to enter any Honduras port because the vessel was used in the capture of Truxillo by the revolutionists. A protest has been entered and a telegram sent to the secretary of the state appealing for protection.

HE WAS DROWNED.

Scranton, Pa., Aug. 10.—William Lewis, of this city, while swimming a race with a companion across Lily lake, near Waverly, Lackawanna county, last evening, was seized with cramps and drowned.

His wife was among a party of pleasure seekers on shore cheering him on to victory when he disappeared and was drowned before a boat that was following the contestants could come up with him.

DOWN TO THEIR DEATH.

One Hundred People Drowned Off Finland.

Two Steamers Come Together in a Fog.

One Was Going at Full Speed and the Other Running Under a Check.

London, Aug. 10.—Fuller details of the collision, attended by great loss of life, between steamers near the coast of Finland, show that two coasting steamers, the Ajax and the Runeburg, collided off the port of Helsingfors, capital of Finland, on Monday last.

The Ajax was loaded with people from Helsingfors, who were out for a Sunday sail. The Runeburg was in the coasting business.

The Ajax had started out on Sunday and been delayed on the return by a heavy fog. The captain concluded to proceed slowly into port and was not at high speed when the collision occurred. The Runeburg, owing to the fog, had no notice of the approach of the Ajax and was going at ordinary speed.

The Runeburg struck the Ajax near the center, shattering that steamer so that the water flowed in in a torrent. The passengers on the Ajax were nearly al Swedish Finns. They behaved with notable courage in the awful situation. The men pushed the women and children to the life buoys thrown out by the Runeburg and took their chances at struggling in the water.

There was no time to lower boats as the Ajax sank almost instantly, carrying down nearly 100 persons.

The Runeburg was badly injured and could not have remained afloat long, but her captain stood by as long as possible to save all that he could of the Ajax passengers and crew. Eighty-six persons are missing and 39 bodies have been recovered.

OH, HO, MR. BROWN.

He Wants to be First Assistant P. M. G.,

To Succeed Smith Whitfield, of Cincinnati—John Wannamaker's Private Secretary in the Way.

Last Saturday Smith A. Whitfield, of Cincinnati, tendered his resignation at first assistant postmaster general, so that he might accept more lucrative employment. There is not much in this point. But Toledo has an interest in the scramble now going on for the position, and included in the scramblers is our own James M. Brown. Wouldn't he be a dandy, floating about Washington?

It seems as soon as the resignation of Whitfield was made known, Mr. Brown and his friends at once set to work to knock the persimmons, and the whole state of Ohio has been canvassed for letters in favor of the Toledo gentleman. Ordinarily, a movement of this character would be successful, since Mr. Brown is and has been the devoted friend of Senator Sherman, whose word usually goes, as was evident in the case of Waldorf versus Luckey for the internal revenue collectorship.

But John Wanamaker, the postmaster general, has a candidate for the office in the person of his private secretary, and it is doubtful whether Mr. Brown can squelch the aforesaid P. S. Here's hoping he can.

The fourth assistant, ex-Senator E. G. Rathbone, of Hamilton, Ohio, has likewise put in his oar, claiming that he is the only man who has accomplished work of any character to amount to anything for the president in the Buckeye state.

Rathbone instances the action of the Ohio delegation at Minneapolis, when even Secretary Foster was unable to hold the boys in line. "Rath" is a great man in his own estimation, but whether he can impress such fact on Mr. Harrison remains to be seen.

So far as Mr. Brown is concerned, Toledoans generally will wish him success. He has well defined business ideas, is not afraid to announce his convictions even if they don't suit his party colleagues, and would undoubtedly prove an efficient officer. In another way, the republicans would probably do their level best to get him the place because it would open up the local postoffice for another twist. Gen. Greene, L. S. Baumgardner, Ed Goldsmith, T. P. Brown, and other candidates could have a show for their white alley, and Senator Sherman would have a chance to pay some political debts.

The fight for the berth will be watched with interest. If Mr. Brown goes into the fight with his usual vigor, it is more than possible that Toedo newspapers will have a chance to spring his picture as First Assistant P. M. G. At least, so mote it be.

They had succeeded in righting the boat and McKenzie was in it when the tug reached the scene. Gorman was picked up floating on a board about two miles from the shore, which he was attempting to reach.

When the tug with the rescued men reached the dock in Sarnia he was greeted by half the population of the town.

SENATOR CARLISLE

Writes to a Friend on Free Coinage.

An Interesting Letter on the Subject.

Financial Affairs Discussed from the Standpoint of a Kentucky Senator.

Washington, Aug. 10.—Senator Carlisle has addressed a letter to John A. Lyne, of Henderson, Ky., in answer to his question whether the senator had heretofore been in favor of the free coinage of silver, and whether his views on the subject had undergone any change.

Senator Carlisle says: The answer to your question depends largely on what you mean by "the free coinage of silver." If you mean the policy urged by many, under which the government of the United States would be compelled by law to receive 68 cents worth of silver bullion when presented by the owner, and coin it at the expense of all the people of the country, and compel the people by law to receive the coin as the equivalent of 100 cents, my answer is that I am not now and never have been in favor of it. I stand now where my lamented predecessor, Mr. Beck, and I stood together in 1873, when the so-called "Bland-Allison bill" was passed by congress, under which the secretary of the treasury was required to purchase and coin monthly not less than $2,000,000 nor more than $4,000,000 worth of silver bullion.

When that bill passed the house of representatives it provided for the free and unlimited coinage of the silver dollar; but after it went to the senate Mr. Beck offered an amendment which provided that the secretary of the treasury should purchase at the market price each month not less than $3,000,000 worth of silver bullion, or as much more as could be coined at the mint, the seigniorage to be paid in the treasury, and whenever the bullion could not be purchased at less than par with legal tender notes, any owner of silver bullion might deposit it for coinage on the same terms as gold was deposited.

Senator Carlisle here quotes at some length from speeches made by Senator Beck at the time of the passage of the "Bland-Allison bill" to the effect that he (Mr. Beck) desired that the people of the United States should receive the benefit of the difference, if any, between the actual and the coined value of the bullion. At the same time, says Senator Carlisle, silver was only 8 or 10 per cent. below gold, while now it is about 45 per cent. below; and if it was not right and just to the people then to donate a seigniorage of 8 to 10 per cent. to the "combination of bullionists" it certainly cannot be right and just now to donate over four or five times that much.

Mr. Carlisle then quotes from his speech in the house in '78, when the original Bland bill had been amended by the senate. Part of the quotation reads: "My position upon this subject is briefly this: I am opposed to free coinage of either gold or silver, but in favor of unlimited coinage of both metals upon terms of exact equality. No discrimination should be made in favor of one as against the other; nor should any discrimination be made in favor of the holders of either gold or silver bullion and against the great body of the people who own other kinds of property. A great movement should treat all its citizens alike and whenever it attempts to do otherwise it will engender a spirit of discontent which sooner or later must disturb the harmony if not the peace of society."

Senator Carlisle says: "This paragraph shows precisely what my position then was and always has been upon this subject. I believe that gold and silver bullion should be treated exactly alike in the mints of the United States—that a dollar's worth of gold should be coined in a gold dollar, and a dollar's worth of silver in a silver dollar; and if no charge is made for the coining of one, then no charge should be made for the coinage of the other. In my opinion the declarations made upon this subject by the democratic party at its recent national convention is perfectly sound in principle and enunciates the only true public policy."

The senator quotes the silver plank and then goes on to argue that its demand cannot be met unless the metal in gold and silver consists of equal value to the coin while still in bullion form, for coinage, in his view, adds nothing to the intrinsic value of the metal. He says that although the United States has coined over $400,000,000 in silver since 1888, it has not increased the value of the bullion, but on the contrary that value had decreased.

The senator asserts that neither gold nor silver coin, excepting subsidiary coins will ever again enter very general into use in any great commercial country, but they will serve only as a basis for the issue of the currency. Any measure that would broaden this basis would benefit the world generally but this cannot be done by the fabrication of two coins of the same denomination, but of unequal intrinsic value. This has been demonstrated by our experience during the last 14 years with silver as a legal tender and we are still on a gold basis.

The senator says there are only two ways in which the basis of circulation can be broadened by the use of silver as part of the real money. First, by the coinage of the silver dollar containing a dollar's worth of silver; secondly, by an international agreement on a ratio. He admits that it would be unfair for the United States acting alone, to make the present value of silver bullion the basis of adjustment, because the partial demonetization of silver, by limiting this coinage, has undoubtedly had considerable influence in depreciating its price and appreciating the price of gold. Free coinage of silver would bring the values nearer a true ratio; for coinage would be found at some point between 16 to 1 and the present relative prices of silver and gold bullion. The senator says it may be impossible for one nation to fix a stable ratio; and, if so, an international conference is the only tribunal that can extricate us from the present situation. In conclusion the senator says he will support any measure that will fully remonetize silver and insure equality of the dollars coined from the two metals; and he sincerely hopes that the approaching conference will be able to reach an agreement that will meet the approval of all governments in it.

COLLISION ON THE CHICAGO & ERIE ROAD.

Lima, O., Aug. 10.—There was a bad rear end collision on the Chicago & Erie road near Kingsland, west of here, yesterday. Two light cabooses were going west with their crews. The first stopped at the station for orders, when the second crashed into the caboose, completely demolishing it. Henry Blackman, proprietor of an eating house at Huntington, was in the caboose, talking with Harry Spraule, a brakeman. He was hit with a piece of timber, breaking three ribs and making a bad scalp wound. He cannot recover. Harry Spraul, the brakeman, was badly hurt, but will recover.

He spoke Sunday morning upon the history of spiritualism. Lyman C. Howe gave a fine address in the afternoon. Mrs. Kates gave tests. G. W. Kates and wife, of Philadelphia, have been active workers. Mr. Kates raised about $1,300 yesterday, and claims that the place is now clear of debt and will be improved for future camps.

LITERALLY STARVED TO DEATH.

Massillon, O., Aug. 10.—On the 16th of June Frank Vogt fell from a scaffold and broke his spine. The entire lower part of his body has been paralyzed ever since and he has not partaken of an ounce of solid food from that time. He died yesterday morning of literal starvation. A week ago he told his brother that he would die on August 8, his twenty-second birthday, and the prediction only missed by four hours.

WALKEY NOMINATED.

Result of the Republican Convention in the Seventeenth.

Uhrichsville, O., Aug. 10.—The republicans of he Seventeenth congressional district, composed of Tuscarawas, Coshocton, Licking, Wayne, and Holmes counties, convened at Dennison to nominate a candidate for congress. Dr. J. E. Groves, of Uhrichsville, was made chairman of the convention, and F. M. Smith, of Newark, secretary. J. M. McDonnell, E. S. Saurs, S. Wooley, and A. B. Critchfield were made a committee on resolutions, and submitted the following report, which was adopted:

Resolved, By the republicans of the Seventeenth congressional convention assembled, that we reaffirm our fidelity to to the cause of republicanism and indorse our state and national platforms.

Resolved, That we indorse the administrations of President Harrison and Governor McKinley, that the McKinley act, including the reciprocity feature, meet with our hearty approval and indorsement.

Resolved, That we condemn the policy of the democratic majority of the Fifty-second congress in their unjust, unpatriotic and cowardly attack upon the McKinley act, for their sham economy and for their general uselessness.

Nominations were then called for and Mayor E. S. Saurs, of New Philadelphia, placed before the convention in a very able manner the name of George Adams, Esq., of Millersburg. Hon. M. L. Smyser, of Wooster, presented, with his usual eloquence, the name of Arthur H. Walkey, a brilliant young attorney of Orrville. Walkey was nominated on the first ballot, and accepted the honor in regular "Roman style."

He is 28 years old, was reared on a farm near Circleville, O., but afterwards removed to Columbus, O., where he finished his education in both English and German, was admitted to the bar in 1886, having been a student of Major Blackburn, the famous criminal lawyer of Cincinnati.

Mr. Walkey has practiced at Orrville since 1888, and his work has been phenomenally successful. The plan of the convention has fallen into the hands of an exceedingly competent young man, the consequence of which can only be learned at the ensuing election.

GEORGIA POLITICS.

Both Parties Are in Hot Water.

The Alliance Vote is What Seems to be Worring the People of the South.

Atlanta, Ga., Aug. 10.—The state convention of the democratic party was called to order at noon to-day by Chairman W. Y. Atkinson of the state central committee. The republican convention will be held to-morrow.

The question of candidate is not exciting so much interest in this state as the attitude of the people's party, and the possibility of its fusing with one or the other of the old parties.

Either the republicans or democrats would be glad to effect a union if favorable terms could be obtained, but the third party men are so confident of their strength that it is doubtful if they will concede enough to induce either of their rivals to enter into a combination with them.

As to the strength of the people's party there is a wide diversity of opinion. The farmer's alliance, which one year ago, had eighty thousand names enrolled, now has but twenty thousand. These are supposed to be about all people's party men.

The leaders now in this city claim that they can poll thirty thousand majority. Such talk is, of course, wild, as is any talk of majority at all at present, but the democratic leaders are awake to the fact that ridicule is no longer the proper weapon with which to meet the people's praty program.

GEN. DENVER DEAD.

Close of a Long and Useful Career.

He Closed His Earthly Career at the Age of Seventy-Five Years.

Washington, Aug. 10.—General J. W. Denver died in this city late yesterday afternoon. He was 75 years old. For more than forty years he has been prominent as a soldier and a politician.

He was born in Clinton county, Ohio, his home being at Wilmington. He served through the Mexican war with conspicuous gallantry.

He was a democrat in politics and President Buchanan appointed him governor of Kansas during the troubles in that territory. Then he went to Colorado for a time, and Denver, the chief city of that state, was named for him.

During the war of the rebellion he had the rank of brigadier general and rendered excellent service. Since the war he has been active in politics. In two democratic national conventions he was a candidate for the presidency, receiving, however, but a small number of votes. Of late years he has spent much of his time in Washington. He was prominent in urging the passage of the pension bill embracing survivors of the Mexican war.

General Denver was well known here, and his death is deeply regretted. He was about six feet in height, strong and robust in appearance. He was taken ill last Saturday with some phase of summer complaint. His malady defied the skill of physicians and he sank rapidly. His body will be taken to Ohio for burial.

Lake Bluff, Ill., Aug. 10.—The arrival of a freight car loaded with a miscellaneous load of musical instruments and kitchen utensils this morning heralded the approach of the advance guard of the Salvation Army, which organization intends to conduct a vigorous campaign from this point for the remainder of the month.

The temperance branch of the work is likely to be somewhat impeded by the almost total lack of water which has afflicted the town for the past week.

Brigadier Fielding has been preparing for this meeting for over a month, and says that he intends to give the church people who are already here an object lesson in missionary work as conducted by the Salvation Army.

San Francisco, Aug. 10.—Advices from Ounalaska tell of the return from the desolate St. Mathew isle of Peter Verina, only survivor of the marooned sailing schooner Mattie D. Dyer. Verina was taken to St. Michaels on the steamer St. Paul. He related that his two companions, Joseph Burns and John Pulsifer, on May 2 of this year started in a small boat for Hollsland, heading their course through a narrow channel formed by the moving ice. They never returned. Verina was in a pitiable condition when rescued.

Capt. Comiskey says: "Mullane is making the greatest mistake of his life. I'll wager if he ever plays ball again it will be for less than $2,500 a year."

Manager Bancroft had an extra ticket back to Cincinnati and offered it to Mullane.

AN ENRAGED FREAK.

A Zulu Resents the Insults of a Crowd of Boys.

New Brunswick, N. J., Aug. 10.—John Lucas, known as an African Zulu, rode well nigh naked on top of a circus wagon during a parade here yesterday.

Boys guyed him, and finally employed eggs and fruit. This so enraged the alleged Zulu that he sprang from the wagon with a war whoop and attacked the boys like a savage beast, biting into their flesh wherever he could fasten his teeth.

The boys screamed, and a crowd of men went to their assistance. Before the negro could be driven off, however, he had severely bitten John Hickey on the arm, James Johnson on the neck and Robert Applegate on the breast.

At one time it looked like a riot, as stones and other missiles were thrown at the black assailant. Policemen with drawn clubs kept the crowd back and succeeded in getting their prisoner safely to the station house.

The injured boys were taken to the nearest drug store, where their wounds were dressed, after which they were sent home. Hickey is the most seriously injured. The part of his arm where he was bitten is badly swollen and there is danger of blood poisoning. The prisoner when arraigned pretended at first that he did not understand English, but finally talked freely.

He claimed that the boys had provoked him to attack them. He was held on a charge of mayhem.

TOLEDO'S NAVAL RESERVE

Started Off in Very Elegant Shape.

The Preliminary Meeting Last Evening—Form of the Petition to be Signed—Fifty-Eight Members Elected.

There was a splendid attendance at the meeting announced in the Bee yesterday afternoon, which was held at the office of the Ames-Bonner company last evening, held for the purpose of discussing the organization of a naval reserve. It was an informal gathering of gentlemen who have manifested an interest in the project since its suggestion by Col. Bonner some time ago.

The following were present: City Auditor Pheatt, Alderman Phil Hassenzahl, Col. J. C. Bonner, Secretary John E. Gunckel and Commodore H. R. Klauser, Dr. L. L. Barber, Ralph E. Rickenbaugh, W. A. Mills, James H. Southard, Henry T. Marshall, Parks Hone, S. P. Germaine, Gus G. Ka and Walter Brown.

Col. Bonner was chosen chairman, and in a few words stated the purpose of the meeting, that of discussing and taking some preliminary action looking to the organization of a naval reserve for the protection of the lake coast, to hold the same relation to the United States navy as the national guard does to the regular army. The men would of course be untrained and generally ignorant of the regulations of such service, and training would be necessary. Such an organization would be something and there would be much pleasure for the boys. It would be a social as well as a military organization. If the proper interest was manifested he felt certain that there would be no difficulty in successfully consummating the project.

Col. Bonner's address was followed by a general discussion of the subject, the views of all being presented and considered.

John E. Gunckel was elected secretary.

After this the initial step in the organization of a national reserve was taken by the drafting of the following communication to be forwarded to Gov. McKinley:

We, the undersigned citizens of Toledo, hereby signify a desire to volunteer our services to the governor of the state of Ohio, the Hon. Wm. McKinley, jr., and request his excellency to muster us for special naval service as a detachment of the Ohio National Guard, and when authorized, to be recognized as an organization of the Ohio Naval Reserve.

This was discussed at some length, unanimously approved, and signed by all present.

A motion was next approved that the temporary organization be made permanent until such time as the authorities shall recognize it as a naval reserve.

It was concluded to limit the membership to 100.

Each person in attendance presented five names for membership to be voted on separately, three negative ballots to reject.

As a result 58 names were presented and all accepted but two.

The meeting adjourned to meet at the Ohio Yacht club rooms to-morrow evening, when the petition will be signed by all who desire to become members. A large attendance is expected.

Goes Over Until 1893.

Simeon Gillis, of Bryan, and C. E. Reynolds, secretary, of Napoleon, have issued the following notice to members of the 68th O. V. I. relative to their reunion:

The annual reunion of the society of the 68th Ohio V. V. Infantry, appointed to be held at Montpelier in 1892, has been postponed one year. The consideration that led to this conclusion is the long rainy season and consequent bad roads; the desire of many to attend the grand encampment at Washington, and the distracting influence of a presidential campaign. The comrades of Companies G and K retain the privilege of entertaining the society at Montpelier at its reunion in 1893.

He'll Be Along this Way.

Lucas county farmers are generally very wise people, but like the average run they are taken in on many deals. At present a swindler is working Allen county, according to the Lima Times, and he will likely be along this way in due time, consequently it is well to be on guard. The fellow's plan is to make a contract with each farmer for his wheat, agreeing to pay $1.05 a bushel, delivered at the nearest station when he so desires it. In order to bind the contract he pays the remainder when the wheat is delivered. He only approaches those who have large amounts. After he gets the contracts he will hold them, never calling for the wheat, and worry the farmer into giving him a nice sum to release the contract. Forewarned is forearmed.

The Steamer Pastime Busy.

The steamer Pastime will carry an excursion to Presque Isle to-morrow from the Fayette branch of the Lake Shore. They will take the 3:30 trip to the lake in the afternoon. Friday there will be an excursion of 600 from Hillsdale and Jonesville, and next Tuesday the churches and Sunday schools of Bryan, Archbald, Wauseon and Stryker will consolidate and visit the pretty island. The 3:30 trip to the lake bids fair to be very popular. A good band furnishes music each day for dancing, if desired, and tables have been provided for lunches, so that parties can have an enjoyable time on their trips. The boat will discontinue the 5:30 trips.

The W. C. T. U.

The Cleveland Plain Dealer's Put-in-Bay letter in this morning's issue has the following about the W. C. T. U. lunch room:

The W. C. T. U. of Lucas county and Cleveland have in successful operation a dining hall tent and counters, where hot meals, hot tea and coffee, lunches and ice cream are dispensed to patrons. ## THE IAMS ESCAPADE.

Judge Howe Recalls Treatment by Gen. McClellan.

A Bee ran across the veteran Capt. H. E. Howe this morning and the captain, being still indignant over the Iams escapade at Homestead, called to mind an illustration of the character of Gen. Geo. B. McClellan.

"I always had a very kind regard for Gen. McClellan, and was glad to have it reinforced by an interview with J. B. McClellan and two of his staff found us vania infantry. I remember how he said, when at Harrison's landing, we were not to go outside the lines, and I as sergeant and some of the boys went outside about half a mile to go in swimming. Gen. McClellan and two of his staff found us bathing. 'You are taking a wash, boys?' said the general, to which we replied in the affirmative. 'When you get through, boys, go right back to camp.' That was all there was about it."

"How was it as to tying men up by the thumbs?"

"They couldn't do it among the volunteers. We wouldn't allow it. It might do with the regulars. I think civilized people ought not to tolerate anything like that, and certainly the national guard might get along without it."

Captain Howe further said that the quotations made from Judge Advocate General Howe's decision by Gen. Howard, if they in that terrible struggle were law, there could be no law for the recent infamy at Homestead.

WILL HARBECK'S SNAP-SHOT.

Fully Described in the Western Electrician.

The Western Electrician, published at Chicago, devotes nearly five columns to a description of Will Harbeck's detective camera, which has been mentioned in the Bee several times. This article is accompanied by seven cuts and diagrams and is very complete. The introduction is as follows:

A most engenious and scientific piece of detective work was recently reported from Toledo, O., by which two young boys who had been engaged in petty thieving were taught a lesson and given a scare that will, it is hoped, mark the turning point in their careers.

One reads a great deal about how the camera may be utilized as an aid in the work of thief catching, and numerous indeed are the burglar detector schemes of the wily electrician who seeks to find through the combination of his art and that of the photographer that ideal apparatus which will make the life of the thief, like the lot of the policeman, "not a happy one." It is not often, though, that these brilliant ideas amount to anything when put in practice. The apparatus "would'nt work" because the thief "didn't do what he was expected to do"—is generally the explanation of most of these failures. For this reason the story of the recent successful experiment in Toledo is highly interesting.

Then follows the story of the capture of two boys who had been stealing cigars from Gus Triquet's barber shop and a description of the apparatus.

That the political world is, indeed, a world of change, is emphasized by the statement that, "of the four hundred men the highest governmental positions at Washington in 1876, only twenty-five are now in office."

Please, Madame Victoria, Pago-Pago is our coaling station. We have laid down only one load of coal there since 1878, to be sure, but that doesn't matter. You just keep off the grass. Samoa has had her turn in American politics, and got Robert Louis Stevenson as an offset. The eye of the Harrison campaign managers is squinting towards Cuba, if any more "foreign complications" are needed.

"What would happen if the vocabulary of 'patriotic effort' and 'consecration' and 'lofty purpose' and 'disinterested love of our common country' should fail?"

What would happen if the spirit of patriotism, consecration and love of country should fail? is a more pertinent inquiry. Grover Cleveland is one of the best living exponents of the principles that call for the vocabulary that the News thinks is comical and out of date. So long as he lives to write and to talk, so long will the vocabulary and the spirit that calls for it be with us to guide and direct.

Attention is called to a certain Connecticut high school. The republican campaign committee should send a man down there to form clubs in school; evidently the college leagues are not enough. In a recent examination aforesaid, the question was asked:

"When was the present constitution of the state adopted and what are its provisions as to the mode of electing a governor?"

And a lad wrote the reply as follows:

"The constitution was adopted in 1818. Under it a democrat must get a majority of all the votes; a republican does not need a plurality.

The boy was well posted in recent state history if not in constitutional provisions.

A correspondent asks an editor to please explain what the following, quoted from a decision rendered by the United States supreme court, means:

To lay with one hand the power of the government on the property of the citizen and with the other to bestow it upon favored individuals to aid private enterprises and build up private fortunes, is none the less a robbery because it is done under the forms of law and is called taxation. This is not legislation; it is a decree under legislative forms. Nor is it taxation. Beyond a cavil, there is no lawful tax which is not laid for public purposes.

The correspondent asks "doesn't it substantiate the charge made in the Chicago platform, that taxation for the purpose of protection is unconstitutional?" The editor has to give it up, because the supreme court has also decided that the McKinley taxation law is constitutionally legal. The question remains unanswered.

When politicians get to disporting themselves at religious conventions and at summer watering places, they need watching. At a recent service at Asbury Park, Ex-Minister to Spain E. Burd Grubb told the people in the crowded auditorium the contrast between Sunday in this country and in Spain, as follows:

Large congregations assemble in the churches in Spain. The people begin to gather at 6 o'clock and remain in religious worship until 11:30. At 3 o'clock in the afternoon the Spaniards meet together again in large numbers. Nowhere else in the country can you see such orderly crowds, and I must say that during my two years in Spain I saw only one drunkard, and he was an American.

The greatness of our country is known all over the world. And how can we best preserve that greatness? Politics should go hand in hand with religion. At the bottom of our greatness is our ballot box. Children should be taught how to vote and the ballot laws of the various states. How best can we roll back the tide of anarchy from our country? Why, by letting the women vote. The time will come when the men will go to the women and ask them to take a part in national politics.

Mr. Grubb should be reminded that his party elects to keep religion and women out of "the miry slough" and the "dirty pool" of politics. An "ex" shouldn't speak so if he wants anything more.

MCKINLEY IN THE WEST.

It is amusing to see the western journals struggle with Gov. McKinley's reckless oratory. One Nebraska journal was surprised to hear him say "the consumer pays the tax, to be sure, but in the end he is benefited." Another was disgusted to hear him repeat "The republicans mean our people shall never pay their own taxes while we can make other people pay them for us." In this section of country, where the Governor is known, people smile at these idiosyncracies. He doesn't argue, he simply asserts; and he usually says the same thing in every speech. There are patent reasons why he should continue to do so.

A GOOD OMEN.

Candidate Reid's hustle to get his record with the typographical union propped up and newly fenced, isn't entirely successful. The union, in session in Utica, N. Y., publishes a long list of Mr. Reid's actions to prove him a foe to organized labor, and calls his nomination "an insult to laboring republicans." They express belief that,

Mr. Reid has made a pretense of acceding to the demands of the union only for the purpose of gaining the votes of those whom he has in the past so grossly maligned and injured, and that when he shall have attained the object sought, he will repudiate all expressed or implied obligations to union workmen.

They pledge themselves to vote against and work against his ticket, tender sympathy to their locked-out brother workmen at Homestead and elsewhere, and resolve to mail copies of their manifesto to every union and trades assembly in the state, city and county.

Without entering at all into the merits of the case, per se, it is a noteworthy fact, which has had a number of recent illustrations, that it is growing to be a more difficult matter to fool the laboring population of voters than it once was. The party decoy mess and the party lash fail to win and to frighten. It is indication of the independence that comes of education and thought. The majority of the members of the Utica union are republicans, and speak for themselves, irrespective of party and of other branches of their society. It is a good omen. It shows to those who are ambitious of official honor they must stand by the record they make, judged intelligently, and not expect to rely upon promises and repairs. It will make public men more careful as they go along, if they realize that to "fix one's fences," is getting to be a delicate and difficult task. Small, unwarranted prejudices are one thing; honest objections, with foundation, are another. Increased intelligence always means self-reliant thought and independent action, and these mean much for the welfare of the country.

MONTHLY MEETING

Of the Toledo Humane Society.

Very Interesting Reports of the Good Work of the Society During the Month of July.

The regular monthly meeting of the Humane society was held at the Humane office last evening, with but few members present. In the absence of President Brown, Vice President Rundell presided, Mrs. Brooks, secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting, which were approved, and presented a few bills, which were not. Among them, was a bill for a new directory which had been ordered by Mr. Kirby. The majority of the members present thought the office had no need of a directory. Mr. France said they had as much use for one as any business house in the city. He said that every day he had calls accompanied by very indefinite addresses. He read Mr. Kirkby's letter stating the reason why he ordered the directory—because it was absolutely necessary, and because there was a continual kick from the infirmary office about the book being in the humane office. Mr. Brown moved that the bill be approved, but as there was no second he withdrew the motion. The majority then said that one member had no right to run the society in debt, without authority from the society, and this bill, and several others for printing, etc., were laid over until the September meeting.

Mrs. R. G. Bacon, chairman of the children's committee, then read her report.

She said she had, at the request of Mr. France, investigated the case of a Mrs. McFeahy, who had a family of interesting children, and neglected them. The neighbors reporting that she drank. She admitted that she had done so, but promised to reform and her children were not taken from her. Her husband, who is an industrious mechanic, working in Michigan, was written to, and promised to attend to the matter.

Chief Raitz, having reported a poor unfortunate at Wyek's hotel, who needed attention of the society, she was given the care needed.

The police reported a colored girl who frequented the court house park; she was was turned over to her father.

Mr. France called the attention of Mrs. Bacon to a child who was being detained at the police station. She investigated the case and found Grace Titus, aged 9 years, who, with her mother, had been arrested for drunkenness. As the mother—who says she a daughter of a Methodist minister of Kansas City,—is an old offender, it was thought best to take the child from her, which Mrs. Bacon did, through the probate court, and placed her at the home at Miami. Orah Friendt, aged 14, was arrested and taken to police station. Her parents, who reside at Pittsfield, Mich., are respectable people. Her father was sent for, and came and took her home. She had told her parents that she was with her sister. She had been in disreputable quarters. The children of Nellie M. Huntley, aged 2 and 4 years, were taken to the home at Miami, and as their father was a soldier, their board will be paid by the soldiers' commission fund.

All these cases had come under Mrs. Bacon's notice during the month of July, and were given in her report with facts, figures and dates. She paid a very high compliment to Mr. and Mrs. Neiss, superintendent and matron of the Miami Children's home, for the excellent work they are doing.

Mr. France then submitted a very interesting and detailed account of the good work of the society during the month, of which the following is a summary:

Relief furnished, 4; cruelty and neglect to children, 6; cruelty and neglect to wife and family, 9; convictions for abuse of wife and family, 9; admonitions for cruelty and neglect to wife and family, 3; admonitions for cruelty and neglect to children, 5; investigations not sustained for cruelty to wife and family, 2; investigations for cruelty and neglect to children not sustained, 3; desertions, 1; charges withdrawn for cruelty to wife and family, 3; arrests for abuse of wife and family, 9; discharged by court, 2; abuse to animals, 3; mules shot, 1; horses shot, 4; horses laid up, 1; animals relieved, 1; investigations not sustained for cruelty to animals, 1; convections for cruelty to animals, 2; homes found, 1; Miami home, 6. The total number of cases for the month of July was 47.

After approving the reports the meeting adjourned to September.

BREWERY STOCK.

London, Aug. 10.—At an exciting meeting yesterday of the shareholders of Allsopp's brewery, it was stated that the profits of the past year had been £20,000 less than those of the previous year. A resolution accusing the directors of incompetency and reckless expenditure was carried almost unanimously. One hunderd pound shares of the Allsopp brewery were quoted at 15 yesterday.

IRON HALL SHORTAGE.

Hartford, Conn., Aug. 10.—The officers of the local branch, No. 1034, of the Iron Hall, who are investigating the accounts of F. Wilson Rogers, the accountant of the branch, have discovered a shortage of over $1,000. Rogers is a well known life insurance agent of this city and was formerly the secretary of the William Rogers Manufacturing company, an old, established silver plating concern.

DIED AT SEA.

New York, Aug. 10—Gardiner Fyre, aged 29, of Boston, a saloon passenger of the Columbia, died on August 9, of phthisis. His body was brought to this port.

A Serious Defect.

The most serious defect in our system seems to be the length of a campaign, which has the effect of beclouding and misleading the popular mind rather than enlightening it; and the fact that after the people have declared their wishes, a government for which they have expressed their contempt holds power over them for so long a period. It takes nearly a year after a candidate is nominated and three months after he is elected for him to get the position to which he is chosen; whereas, it is a matter of as many weeks in England. And, whereas, parliament meets immediately after its election and sets to work at once to carry out the wishes expressed by the people, it is 56 weeks, or considerably over a year, after it is chosen before our congress begins to legislate. In the meanwhile, the views of the people may have changed, and under all circumstances a large number of the men who have been elected are dead before they ever take their seats.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Foster's Speech on Money.

Mr. Foster is entitled to thanks for stating the truth so candidly and spoiling the favorite assertion of his fellow republican politicians that it was tariff reduction that caused the three principal revulsions which this country experienced before 1873.—Chicago Herald (Ind.)

Discovered at Last.

We have discovered the workingman whose income has been increased indirectly by the McKinley bill. He is the auctioneer who sold the infant tin-plate factory at Anderson, Ind., by order of the sheriff.—New York World.

DEMOCRATIC DESSERT.

Spare Your Tears.

There is no occasion to weep over Pennsylvania's great expenses in quelling her workingmen. She has robbed her sister states so long that he ought to have plenty of funds to carry her through a thousand labor riots.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Just Like McKinley.

Mr. McKinley usually begins his speeches with the proposition that free trade would ruin the country, and ends up by extolling his bill for placing so many articles on the free list. A hobby horse with two heads facing opposite directions is quite an amusing curiosity.—Kansas City Star.

Facts from Headquarters.

The following figures have been obtained from a prominent member of the Canned Goods Exchange: The Welsh tin makers are producing and supplying to the Baltimore establishments tin-plate of a reduced weight, and, therefore, inferior quality, the weight now supplied being from 92 to 100 pounds to the box against the standard weight of 112 pounds before the McKinley bill was enacted. This inferior and light weight tin cost $1.15 per box more than the better grade and heavier weight cost under the old tariff. Thus inferior three-pound cans cost about 45 cents a hundred more and two-pound cans 35 cents per hundred more than good cans formerly did.—Baltimore Sun.

Negatively Praised.

The democratic house voted no subsidies; authorized no corruption bounties; encouraged no land grabs; passed no Force bills or McKinley bills; counted no quorums; unseated no republicans who had been elected; passed no laws increasing class privileges, and did all that could be done against Pinkerton Plutocracy. This is record enough for any democratic house.—St. Louis Republic.

Go. McKinley says in effect that high taxes lower the cost of living. If this be true then low taxes must raise the cost of living, and everybody should feel thankful that this country is blessed with a war tariff.—Chicago Mail (Ind).

Young Man to Be Retired.

Georgia is by no mans proud of Mr. Watson and his antics before the country, and she hopes that nobody will accuse her of responsibility for them. Mr. Watson goes his own wild way, and it is a way that will lead him out of congress at the expiration of the present term.—Atlanta Journal.

Presuming, as was his right, that his relations were with gentlemen, Congressman Breckinridge never for a moment supposed that his election as world's fair orator was a bribe for his vote upon world's fair appropriations. If the Illinois directory holds a different view let them proclaim their infamy by canceling the congressman's appointment.—Chicago Times.

TOLEDO'S VISITORS

Will Receive a Royal Reception Next Week.

Special Joint Meeting of the Y. M. C. B. A. and the St. Cecelia Society at Friendship Hall Last Evening.

An interesting joint meeting of the Y. M. C. B. A. and the St. Cecelia society was held last evening at Friendship hall, President P. H. Sugrue in the chair.

The chief business before the meeting was the arrangements for the annual convention of the I. C. B. U., which will open here next week.

It was decided to attend the services at St. Francis de Sales church on the morning of the 17th in a body. Admission to the church will be free to all, although the center aisles will be reserved for visiting delegates and members of the societies.

Prof. J. B. Poulin has organized a special choir, comprising the best musical talent of the city, for the occasion. It is believed that the Rt. Rev. Bishop Horstman will deliver the address.

Tickets for the banquet and boat ride, the number of which is limited, were distributed, and all holding tickets for the banquet are requested to report the number sold not later than Sunday afternoon next. This is necessary so that he caterer, Mr. Chas. Hamner, may know the exact number of plates to provide.

The ladies of the St. Cecelia society will have charge of the tables, and will be assisted by 40 members of the Young Men's society.

A reception committee of ten will be appointed by the president and will be named at a special joint meeting to be held at 3 o'clock next Sunday afternoon.

The executive committee, of which Mr. J. J. Murphy is chairman, will at Sunday's meeting report the names of committees to act as ushers, etc., and to further perfect arrangements.

There will be no special parade or demonstration outside of a procession to St. Francis de Sales church on the morning of the 17th.

The orchestra of the People's theater has been secured for the banquet and also for the boat ride on the City of Toledo.

A special committee on entertainment will be appointed at the next meeting.

The young ladies seem to be taking an even more active part in the preparations than are the young men. They are contributing their time and money and are doing excellent work.

A handsome ribbon badge to be used during the convention will be presented to all those who attend the services in the church Wednesday morning.

HE'S AFTER THEM.

Colonel Abbott Secures Another of the Gang

That Has Been Flooding This Section of the Country With Counterfeit Money.

Last evening United States Deputy Marshal C. J. Peet arrived in the city with Remus Corder, whom he arrested at Woodville, O., on the charge of handling and uttering counterfeit money.

Corder, it is claimed, is one of the gang of queer shovers that has infested this part of the country for several months. This makes the fifth capture, and Col. Abbott, who in conjunction with the officials here, is handling the matter for the government, has not gotten through yet.

Yesterday Bill George, who has been under arrest at Dunbridge, but too ill to be removed, was brought to the city by Deputy Harmon and placed in the hospital at the workhouse. He is still very ill, but is rapidly recovering.

Both men will have a hearing before the United States commissioner as soon as the other cases are disposed of, which will be sometime next week.

CAN'T IDENTIFY.

The Unknown Remains Still in the Morgue at Lockport.

Lockport, N. Y., Aug. 10.—The body, supposed to be Julia Phillips, of this city, which was shipped here from Chicago last week, still lies in the morgue here.

The authorities begin to believe that, despite Phillips' assertion that the corpse is unknown to him, it really is that of his daughter Julia.

Several persons who had known Julia intimately have seen the remains and express themselves as confident that the remains are hers. The authorities are continuing their investigations and expect to be able to prove the identity of the body within a few days.

KILLED BY A FALLING TREE.

Wapakoneta, O., Aug. 10.—(Special)—Last evening, while Jacob Lee, a farmer residing two miles west of this city, was felling trees, a large branch struck him in the back, knocking him to the ground and pinning him fast. He also received internal injuries from which he died in about thirty minutes. He was found by his son, who was almost prostrated by the sight. He leaves a large family.

REPUBLICAN RELISHES.

Meant for Sarcasm.

Mr. Wilson of West Verginia, we may add, is one of the democratic leaders of the house, and an object of the unstinted admiration of our mugwumps. What he doesn't know about the character and principles of the democratic party is not worth knowing at all.—Boston Journal.

Healthy Kind of a Freak.

One of the freaks of politics is found in the announcement that an obscure but ambitious republican politician in this city has joined the democratic forces, because he does not believe the republican party is giving the workingman sufficient protection.—N. Y. Mail and Express.

That Glenwood Heights Club.

These republicans appear to want pay for their votes. They ask for "satisfactory" changes in asylum officers. Satisfactory to whom? To them. They threaten, if satisfaction is not rendered, to withdraw their support from the party this fall.—Columbus Dispatch.

Labor War an "Object Lesson."

Mr. Cleveland's campaign of education is now in full progress. Schoolmaster McKinley had a class of 15,000 in Nebraska on Tuesday, and he proposes to continue his lessons from day to day until the 8th of November. Armed with facts showing the improvement of the condition of working people under the new tariff McKinley's teaching takes the form of an object lesson.—San Francisco Call.

Same Thing in Ohio.

If the proposition to exhibit the Congressmen who filibustered against the world's fair bill in the house of representatives is adopted, Missouri can make a large and interesting contribution. With two exceptions, her delegation of fourteen arrayed themselves solidly against the measure, well knowing that in so doing they were misrepresenting their constituencies.—St. Louis Star-Sayings.

"A Campaign of Education."

The last issue of Judge had a cartoon representing a cemetery filled with tombstones marked Gettysburg, Shiloh, Chickamauga, Cold Harbor, etc., the wraith of a Union soldier standing sentry in the midst, while all over the foreground, bigger than the ghostly sentinel or all the tombstones put together, crawled a great serpent, with protruding fangs and wearing the head of Adlai Stevenson lifted high. It was a nasty, loathsome picture, embodying the worst conceivable form of "personality." Democrats are developing a splendid activity in the field of Chairman Carter's financial operations in the far West. In the St. Louis Republic, the Chicago Herald, and other truly stalwart organs he is pictured as a shark, a usurer, a swindler, and a confidence man—an ugly chronicle of spoilation that might make a pirate blush. Verily, the mud of '92 bids fair to break the record of all nastiness.—Washington Post.

TWO CHILDREN ARRESTED.

A Little Girl Burglarizes a House

And an Eleven-Year-Old Boy Does Two Bad Jobs—Work for the Advisory Board.

The number of children who are being arrested in the city for till-tapping, robbing and pocketpicking is just at present alarming. Two cases will occupy the attention of the police court to-morrow, one of which, that of Katie Keck, is most strange. Katie is a pretty little 12-year old girl, but it has developed that she deliberately entered the house of Mary Gerrick and stole $35. The charge of grand larceny will be placed against her. She spent some of the money and hid the rest under the house.

The little girl does not take her arrest seriously, and is as calm and composed as if nothing occurred. She was turned over to the matron.

The other case is that of Walter Morosky, a lad 11 years of age. He is charged with having gone through two men who were sleeping under a tree on the outskirts of the city, taking a watch from one and a plug of tobacco from the other; also with going through the house at the corner of Housman and Locust streets, ransacking the bureau drawers and stealing a watch.

These children's cases constitute one-half the thieving done in the city. The children will be tried to-morrow in the presence of the advisory committee appointed by the probate court to watch such cases. The committee is composed of Mrs. Fay, Mrs. Edward Bissell, Mrs. Klein, Gen. P. S. Slevin, M. J. Cooney and L. G. Richardson.

"AMOOSEMENT"

At the Toledo Exposition—Elk and Moose Races.

Those Cute Little Ponies, Dwarfie and Dottie, the Smallest Ponies in the World.

The rooms of the Toledo Exposition company have more the appearance of a great publishing house than a business office, with the stacks of mail piled high, the highly colored lithographs of all sizes, and the fine engravings, showing pictures of the many special attractions, not to mention the new paper that the company is issuing, "The Toledo Exposition and Great Interstate Fair Herald," which promises to be a dangerous rival to the city dailies.

Perhaps the greatest, and certainly one of the most expensive attractions offered, is the moose and elk race. The animals are owned by Rigney & Co., and have already been shipped from Manitoba. The team of elk (both males) are very well trained and great speeders. The moose (male and female) are also good runners. They are a rare sight, and Barnum does not carry them. There will be a ring near the main entrance to the ground where these animals will be exhibited when not on the race track. This will give the people a chance to inspect them closely.

Then those midget ponies. There will be the largest herd and smallest ponies in the world.

The entries for the races and calls for space for exhibits are so numerous that it would be impossible to mention half of them.

J. P. Beatty, of Pataskaea, O., will exhibit a fine herd of cattle. Mr. S. A. Forquer, of Hillsdale, Mich., will exhibit 60 pairs of handsome fowls. W. C. Fair, of Cleveland, will have a herd of standard bred trotting horses at the fair. The Stover Manufacturing company, of Freeport, Ill., will exhibit a number of hardware novelties. Mr. J. T. Taylor, of Ladoga, Ind., has entered his horse, Crisis, for 3-year old trotters.

Miss Zella Funk is assisting at the office during the rush.

THE DEBATE WAS WARM

Gladstone and Balfour Lock Horns.

The Irish Members Called a Motley Crowd.

The Opening Gun in What Promises to be England's Greatest Political Battle.

London, Aug. 10.—The speech by Mr. Gladstone in the commons is the talk of the country. Gladstone's appearance was greeted with the heartiest of cheers. Mr. Gladstone opened by calling attention to the change in tactics in not resigning when the country was opposed to it.

The house had met, Mr. Gladstone said, but they did not know for what. (Cheers). The queen's speech told them nothing. Was it a fact, he asked, that the judgment of the nation was without appeal? Was the house of commons to fight the battle of the last six years over again? Never had there been a great issue submitted to the country that had been so fully discussed as the issue decided at the last general election. The government was perfectly aware of that. They knew well what a majority of the house had come prepared to give effect to the verdict of their constituents. (Cheers). They could not do otherwise.

Mr. Goschen had said that home rule must be carried by an Irish majority if it was carried at all. As a point of fact the majority of the house was no more Irish than Scotch or Welsh. Nobody had any title to distinguish votes for the purpose of invalidating the decision of the house or country. Such an argument struck at the root of the constitution of the United Kingdom.

There certainly was a sense in which parliament was justified in examining votes; that was when a scheme was proposed that affected fundamentally any part of the country. For example, it was customary to give effect to the wishes of the people of Scotland. The observations about an Irish majority were in deference to a bad tradition. Those making them would not venture to make similar ones about any other part of the United Kingdom. The fact that the majority was Irish was a recommendation rather than otherwise. (Cheers from the Irish members).

As to the coming government, it would be time to criticise its words and deeds when it came into office, not while it remained a nebulous hypothesis. The conservative said that in the liberals' speeches home rule was not always prominent. The verdict of the country had shown that the people meant it to be prominent and therefore to put an end to the present government. The supporters of the government made much of the peace now prevailing in Ireland, holding that it was due to coercion. The tendency toward peace began in 1885 with the better prospect of home rule. True, after the present government came into power there was a bad state of affairs in 1886, partly arising from agricultural depression.

Mr. Gladstone added that in justice to the government, he must say they were entitled to credit for what they did toward relieving the distress by the land act of 1887, but that came too late. It was not associated with the administration of laws in harmony with the sympathies of the people. A perpetual coercion act not only violated civil rights between Englishmen and Irishmen, but was in the highest degree injurious to respect for the law and its administration. As he had been asked questions respecting the continuance of coercion, he would reply at once that the coercion bill ought not to be retained on the statute book longer than required by parliament usage. (Cries of "hear, hear.")

Mr. Gladstone then proceeded to refer to the government's legislation. He credited them with the conversion of the national debt, but complained that they had inflicted on Ireland a gross wrong in making her pretended reparation by a local government bill too limited to satisfy Irish wants or to offer any solution of the Irish troubles.

Passing from these matters Mr. Gladstone acknowleged that the debate could not be altogether retrospective. The house must have some light on the future. He would not anticipate who would govern when the present administration was displaced. It was not possible for a Liberal government to say what measures they would submit to parliament six months hence.

In regard to the suggested holding of a session in November he could only say that any government taking that course would show inadequate sense of the magnitude and variety of the subjects it had to deal with.

Attempts had been made to contrast the claims of Ireland as against the claims of Great Britain, to the attention of parliament. Much could be said on both sides, but the claims of Ireland had for years been the forefront of the battle, and still held that position. (Opposition cheers).

The principles of his home rule bill were pretty well known. By its provisions there would be a full and effectual maintainance of imperial supremacy while Ireland would be given the conduct of her own affairs. Irish representation in the house of commons was also contemplated under certain conditions. As to the form in which these principles would be embodied, it was the duty of the Liberals to select the best form, but not until they had been placed in power.

The bill for seven years had had his primary and absorbing interest, and it would so continue to the end. (Cheers). The house would address itself seriously to a bill giving Ireland self-government. It would pass the house of commons and then go to the house of lords. He would not argue upon the probability of the house or lords rejecting the bill. If the measure passed the house of commons, springing out of a continuous controversy lasting seven years, which had been carried on with zeal and ability under such diversity of circumstances, never would the house of lords have before them a question of greater importance to the empire at large, never a greater question to themselves. (Opposition cheers). The obligations of a Liberal government would utterly forbid acquiescence in the rejection of these obligations. To promote the settlement of a great subject it would remain unweakened and unchanged. (Cheers). At the same time it would be necessary to deal in 1893 with a sensible portion of British wants, the demand for which had grown accelerated. (Cries of "hear, hear"). He reminded the house that the Liberals had been vainly trying to pass various measures of reform while in opposition. Speaking broadly, these represented the essential character of the Liberal policy, and in conjunction with, or rather in subjection to, the great question between England and Ireland had received the distinct approbation of the country. (Cheers).

Referring to the amnesty of Irish prisoners, Mr. Gladstone said it was impossible for any other than responsible ministers to give any pledge either for the revision or remission of sentences. In regard to evicted tenants, he expressed the hope that during the autumn a voluntary arrangement between landlords and tenants would obviate the necessity for such legislation as would become inevitable if no arrangements were made. In concluding his speech Mr. Gladstone recurred to the conservative argument that the Irish majority was trying to coerce England. He held that such was the strength of England in relation to other kingdoms that she could never be coerced by them. She had a giant's strength, but let her not use it as a giant. It would be most unfortunate if any party placed undue reliance in the power and strength of England against other members of the federation in forgetfulness of the fact that in the long run moral force would predominate over material force. On that predominance depended what should be the first object of their desires, as it was their daily official prayer, that it is union of heart and sentiment which constituted the truest basis of strength at home and good fame throughout the civilized world. (Loud cheers.)

Mr. Balfour followed Mr. Gladstone, protesting against Mr. Gladstone's describing the influence Ireland had exercised in recent years on British politics as derived from moral consideration. Immoral consideration, he said, was the right phrase. Mr. Gladstone's conversion to home rule was not due to moral forces, but to material party considerations.

Referring to the coercion policy, Mr. Balfour reminded the house that Mr. Gladstone in 1885 proposed to retain the coercion law with the assent of Sir G. O. Trevelyan, Lord Spencer, and other colleagues. In regard to the proposed vote of no confidence, continued Mr. Balfour, the government might be in a minority, but what was the majority? Had that Motley group the confidence of the house. ("Hear, hear.") The government, seeing the existing circumstances, had a right to review the situation. The division of the opposition into sections with different aims could not be left out of account. The existing partnership between Great Britain and Ireland could not be dissolved without the assent of both on terms acceptable to both.

Considering the fact that Irish members would be kept at Westminster, that an English majority might find itself at the mercy of a combination of an English majority with Irish members, it was clear that England had at least as much interest in home rule as Ireland had. They had a right to insist that one of the parties to the existing partnership objected to its being dissolved. Unfortunately for all parties Mr. Gladstone's allies were his masters. The Irish members told the liberals "unless you do this and that we will turn you out. (Conservative cheers.) How long would such a state of things be to the interests of the empire if the Irish dominance continued? Before the government resigned they had the right to ask what were the conditions under which the alliance between the liberals and the Irish would be maintained; what conditions there were between the nationalists who had been squared and those who had not been squared, and what demands had been made upon the liberals when they came into power. ("Hear, hear.") If disturbances arise in Ireland such as marked Mr. Morley's last period in office there, was disorder to have a free hand? Was it part of the new compact that Daly and other convicted dynamiters should be let loose upon the world? (Conservative cheers.) The Irish members said that evicted tenants must be restored to their holdings, and that those thousands of others who had purchased them should be punished for their industry? ("Hear, hear.") Were the liberals going to accede to the demands of Mr. Redmond that there should be no interference with the acts of the Irish parliament, or would they tamely submit to Irish dictation, refusing legislation from England until the home rule bill was passed? The conservatives might be beaten by that party, but as yet they had not been so beaten. (Cheers and counter cheers.) They knew that the future was with them. They knew that if the work of social legislation was to be undertaken by the house at all it must be by unionists and not by a party under Irish coercion. ("Hear, hear.") In turning the government out had the liberals the slightest prospect that home rule first, repeal of the crimes act next, and thirdly the destruction of the house of lords (laughter) would allow the government time for passing other important measures which the country heartily desired and which they could not touch owing to the Irish allies. The country had returned most of the liberal members under the absolutely mistaken conviction that they were going to deal with the New Castle program. The time would come when the electors would turn to the party having the power and the will to press forward the social questions to legislative issues. The country would get sick of Irish dictation and would turn to the party that had shown during recent eventful years that it was not unworthy to frame the laws and guide the destinies of a great empire. (Cheers.)

Mr. Harrington said he had listened to some of Mr. Gladstone's remarks with anxiety. He felt bound to warn the liberals that some questions required immediate attention. He regretted Mr. Gladstone's scant dismissal of the case of evicted tenants. They had borne the brunt of the battle, and had made the greatest sacrifices for their class. He did not think their case presented an insuperable difficulty. Again, if the amnesty question was neglected it would cause a fresh agitation and fresh trouble. If the liberal party was wise it would give specific pledges to satisfy Ireland on these matters.

In gleaning the opinion of the lobby a reporter found that the McCarthyites concurred in the opinion that the declarations, though undecided, were satisfactory.

They could hardly express any other opinion, as Mr. Balfour's reference to the party as "being squared" had attained the credence of the whole house. The Parnellites were not quite so satisfied.

They were especially discontented with Mr. Gladstone for refraining from giving a pledge to release the dynamiters. Part of their discontent arises from the studied neglect of the liberal leaders to take them into their confidence. The liberal whips ignore them, and have not even invited their vote on the coming division.

In spite of this, the reporter was assured that the Parnellites would vote with Mr. Gladstone on Thursday, and that the McCarthyite reports that they would abstain were a libel on the spirit of the party.

It has been arranged to suspend the midnight rule on Thursday so as to enable the house to effect a division.

Mr. Gladstone ignored the request of the labor members, addressed to him earlier in the day, to make some reference to the eight-hour bill.

When the house adjourned until Thursday Mr. Healy, supported by Earl Compton, protested against the unnecessary delay of the division, accusing the government of using the delay for jobbery in Ireland. Forty appointments, they said, had been made in Ireland since Saturday.

STOLE THE HORSES.

Cheyenne, Wyo., Aug. 10.—A dozen horses taken into Johnson county for the purpose of deputy United States marshals, were stolen from a corral near Buffalo, Monday night. ## PROFESSOR PICKERING

Tells What He Saw on the Face of Mars.

Observations Made in Far-Away Peru.

Much Valuable Information Gathered Concerning the Golden-Head Planet.

New York, Aug. 10.—The Herald has received a cable from Prof. Pickering, who in December, 1890, was sent to Arequipa, Peru, by Harvard college, in prosecution of its self-assumed task of making a complete map of the heavens.

Another special object of the expedition was the observation of Mars during its present apposition. Following is the cable received:

"In my observations of Mars I have seen two large areas near the equator, which are permanently blue. Near the edges they appear light blue. The light is slightly polarized. The total size of the area is about 500,000 square miles, one-have of the size of the Mediterranean sea. On June 23, a small dark spot appeared in the southern snow cap. Later this spot lengthened rapidly and early in July it was a thousand miles long, dividing the snow in half.

"Sixteen hundred square miles of snow have melted within the last 30 days. The melted snow has apparently been transferred to the sea across the land.

"Small dark areas surrounded by snow appeared on July 10 and two days later I first saw a dark line in the fork of a Y-shaped mark in the direction of the seas. The line became more conspicuous on July 14 and on the 15th a dark area about the size of Lake Erie appeared on the northern side of the stem of the Y which was connected with the northern sea. This had grown much fainter by July 23 and a new area appeared to the south of the northern sea concealing its outline. The line in the fork of the Y had disappeared but the area of the Y had extended.

"On July 24 a large dark area, apparently either a lake or a sea, appeared near the melting snow and on July 25 the southern branch of the Y became very narrow. The outlines of the northern sea were seen again, a narrow white line stretching north from the snow. Many other changes were noted. Rapidly changing, faint whitish areas were seen. Green areas near the poles have not been seen for many weeks, but traces were recently suspected and a bright green area was distinctly seen near the north pole Monday night.

HE IS READY TO QUIT.

Baron Von Soden Asks to be Relieved.

The Action is Looked Upon in Germany as a Triumph for Major Wissman.

Berlin, Aug. 10.—The Tageblitt announces that Baron Von Soden, governor of German East Africa, has asked to be relieved from his post.

This is accepted as a triumph for Major Wissmann.

For a long time a dead set has been made against the administration of German East Africa under Baron Von Soden by the colonial party which has identified itself with the warlike policy of Major Wissmann.

The friends of Major Wissmann declare that from the very beginning of Baron von Soden's administration friction with the natives and general discontent have prevailed.

The retirement of Baron Von Soden, should his request be granted would also be regarded as a triumph for and vindication of the Berliner Tageblatt whose correspondent, Herr Eugene Wolf, has severely assailed Von Soden's administration.

A BRILLIANT WEDDING.

Marriage of Mr. Louis Wickham and Miss Lillian Benedict at Norwalk, O.

Norwalk, O., July 10.—One of the most brilliant weddings that ever took place in this city occurred last evening at St. Paul's Episcopal church. The church was elaborately and handsomely trimmed for the ocasion. Rev. Chas. S. Aves performed the ceremony. The contracting parties were Mr. Louis W. Wickham, son of ex-Congressman Wickham, and Miss Lillian

Hand Medicine Co., Gentlemen:
My baby is now three months old and has had colic all her life. We gave her all kinds of remedies without any beneficial effect. I was almost discouraged in trying anything else when a friend told me of your Dr. Hand's Colic cure. I gave her 12 drops which acted like a charm. Now as soon as I discover she has wind colic I give her one or two doses which relieves her entirely. I want to advise all mothers who have fretful babies to use Dr. Hand's Colic Cure. I will hereafter always keep it in the house.

There has been recently a unique ladies' strike in Germany in one of the garrison towns. The conduct of the men, who neglected the unmarried ladies in order to dance with the wives of their friends and acquaintances, displeased the slighted maidens and their mothers, and at the last regimental ball not an unmarried girl was present.

A remarkable fact can be discovered with the aid of a pencil. In the twentieth generation preceding the present, each person now alive had 1,000,000 of ancestors. The exact figures are 1,048,576. Every person had two parents, four grandparents, eight great-grandparents, etc. Keep on doubling until the twentieth generation, and you will verify the immense aggregate given above.

Hosts of unemployed men and of others seeking temporarily to better their condition are flocking to the Delaware peninsula now to pick small fruits for the markets of Philadelphia and New York. About four years ago a workman at Beaver Falls, noticing a toad about the size of a walnut, placed it in a little pile of sand, and, laying a large stone on it, never gave it another thought. A year after this particular stone began to show signs of decay, and finally cracked clean across. The crack began to widen until a few days ago an aperture was made and out jumped a live toad. It was found to be of monster size.

The Falklands produce no trees, but they do produce wood in a very remarkable shape. You will see, scattered here and there, singular blocks of what look like weather-beaten, mossy, gray stones, of various size. But if you attempt to roll over one of these rounded boulders, you will find yourself unable to accomplish it. In fact, the stone is tied down to the ground—tied down by the roots; or in other words, it is not a stone, but a block of living wood.

In a graveyard at White Pine, Cal., there have been found recently petrified human bodies in many kinds of dress, miners, desperadoes with their pistols and knives buckled round their waists, and persons of all degrees. White Pine 25 years ago was one of the phenomenal cities of the west, many hundred buildings being erected, but to-day only a few remain standing, most of them having fallen and decayed. It is owing to the lime water in that section that the bodies have turned to stone.

TWO KINDS OF COWARDS

"There is a great deal of difference between the private and public courage of some men," observed a distinguished southerner who won a generalship at Gettysburg. "To me the most painful illustration of this fact was in the course of the first day's fight at the battle of the Wilderness. I had two Mississippi regiments in my command, and, being a native of that state, I knew quite a number of the soldiers personally. One man I had known for years as a well-to-do planter in the Delta. For the first two years of the war he hired a substitute, but he was free with his abundant means in contributing to the scant exchequer of the confederacy. Under the general conscription act he was forced into line. When he arrived at the camp he came straight to my tent.

"I was glad to see him, for I knew him personally to be a man of unquestioned courage. He and my brother had been at college together, and afterward, during a political contest, in which he was a candidate for the state senate, he had fought a duel with his Whig opponent, and my brother was his second. The men fought at ten paces, and he shot the Whig down, though not fatally. He was one of those men who gave no insult and brooked none, and so successfully had he come out of three or four unprovoked personal encounters that in his county he was looked upon as the champion fighter when he had to fight.

"Well, sir, when that man came to my tent, just before the battle of the Wilderness, he seemed to be in a tremor, and not enough self-possessed to answer my cursory questions about our former friends. He was simply a man scared out of his wits.

"Ignoring my questions altogether, he said to me: 'General, if I go into battle I'll be killed. I know I will, and I have come to you to implore you to find something else that I can do. I don't care what the service is. I will even hold horses, drive wagon—anything, but I cannot go into battle to be shot at, for I just know that I will be killed at the first fire.'

"I laughed at him and joked him for his superstition, but I frankly told him that he must go to the front, for we needed ten times more men than we could get. I told him that we should probably have a battle the next day; that I had been in every battle since the first Manassas and had not been touched by ball or powder, and that he should go along with me, and of course that meant he had to fight. As it turned out, it was a fight at close quarters before I got through with it.

"My friend knew A. P. Hill, and at his request I went with him to Hill's tent. To my chargin he repeated his request to Hill to spare him the crucial test of battle. Hill really seemed to be amused, and jestingly said: 'I expect you to kill at least ten Yankess to-morrow, and then I will see to it that you are raised to a captaincy for bravery on the field. Go right along and win your spurs, for it looks now as if we were to have a great battle.'

"Early the next day we went into that horrible death camp. My friend staid in my tent that night, but I doubt very much whether he slept a wink. I know he did not take any breakfast, except pretentiously to drink some very inferior coffee that my cook served hastily while our horses were being saddled.

"We hurried into line and my men seemed eager to get into the fight. But, sir, my conscripted friend seemed to have lost the power of speech. He mechanically followed me, and when I told him that if we made a charge on the enemy he must be careful not to let his horse throw him, he shuddered, and the tears rolled down his cheeks.

"We were pushed right into the hottest of the fight at once, and, strange as it may sound, I do believe that the first bullet aimed at us from the federal lines struck my friend squarely in the forehead, and he toppled off his horse a corpse.

"His premonition of sudden death had come tragically true, and all that day I was depressed with the thought that I might possibly have saved that man's life.

"The next morning, before he was buried in the long trench, I took from his pocket a daguerreotype of his wife and his two children, a son and a daughter, and afterward sent it to his wife. It would be cruel to give that man's name; but his daughter, now dead, became the wife of a congressman, and was a belle in her day. The son is a talented lawyer in the west, and, singular enough, has had his affair of honor, and at fifteen paces wounded his man, but not seriously.

"Yes, sir; there are some men who will fight in a crowd and then there are men who won't.

"Quite a contrary case to this," continued the general, "was one which I heard Gen. Braxton Bragg tell the last time I saw him here in New York a year or two before he dropped dead on the street in Galveston, Tex. He said that the thing happened in the Mexican war, and if I recollect aright, in the battle of Buena Vista. The soldier he referred to was a Georgian, and Gen. Bragg said that personally he was the most abject coward he had ever known.

"He said that only a few days before the battle he saw another soldier slap this fellow's face and the blow was not resented.

"'But that same man, that personal coward,' said Gen. Bragg, 'immortalized himself on the historic field of Buena Vista. The color bearer of my regiment was shot down, and to my surprise, having witnessed the face slapping of a day or two before, I saw this man, who did not have the grit to defend himself, rush forward, snatch up the colors, and, dashing to the front, call on the men to follow him.

"'And that same man was promoted for bravery on the battlefield.'"—New York Times.

LOOK OUT FOR HIM.

And Trust Him Not—He is Fooling Thee Muchly.

Look out for the man who advertises that on payment of 50 cents he will tell you how to make one-cent postage stamps do the work of two-cent stamps. If you send him your 50 cents you will get the following answer by return mail. "Use two of them."

The man who is willing to have only a little religion will never have any.

Sin would never hurt anybody if it couldn't look little and harmless at first.

No man loves God a bit who does not love Him with every dollar he is worth.

No Christian wants purity in his heart who does not also want it in his church.

One sinner in heaven would be as much of a start there as the devil would want.

Too many people are electric lights in prayer meeting and tallow dips at home.

It is not according to God's plan that any Christian should carry an ounce of weight.

The love that men have for little sins is the same kind that the devil has for big ones.

Every sermon ought to have something in it that the devil will have to try to answer.—Ram's Horn.

The old-time simple remedy from the Georgia swamps and fields has gone forth to the antipodes, astonishing the skeptical and confounding the theories of those who depend solely on the physician's skill. There is no blood taint which it does not immediately eradicate. Poisons outwardly absorbed or the result of vile diseases from within all yield to this potent but simple remedy. It is an unequaled tonic, builds up the old and feeble, cures all diseases arising from impure blood or weakened vitality. Send for a treatise. Examine the proof.

ABOUT PEOPLE.

Abram W. Smith, candidate for governor on the republican ticket in Kansas, is almost a giant in stature, and is possessed of the most robust health.

Massachusetts has four living ex-governors who were born in 1818—Boutwell, Claflin, Rice and Butler.

Candidate Weaver has received a silver pen with which he will sign a free coinage bill when he becomes president. Thus so much silver is retired permanently from circulation.

Mr. Henry M. Stanley has become so angered by the flippant allusions in the American newspapers to his late canvass that he declares he will never set foot in the United States again. Here's long life to Mr. Stanley's excellent temper.

"Boss" Shepherd lives in baronial state in his own castle among the mines and haciendas near Batopilas, Mex., where the degenerate descendats of the Montezumas look upon him as a giant of energy and progress. He looks but little older than he did ten years ago and retains all of his remarkable vitality.

Carl Schurz is said to be at work upon several speeches to be delivered in the approaching campaign. He cannot speak extemporaneously and it is necessary for him to write out and commit to memory all his addresses, but as a result they gain in force and elegance of diction.

In October of last year Mr. Gladstone contributed an article to the Nineteenth Century on the political outlook in Great Britain, in the course of which he predicted that the Salisbury movement would soon be overthrown, and that the opposition majority in the elections would be about 46, which is but six in excess of the actual majority obtained.

"The old William," said Prince Bismarck recently, "was not, it is true, a great statesman, but he was a man of mature and sound judgment. He would never act without consulting one or more of his counselors. Then, he was a perfect gentleman. I was deeply attached to him. The Emperor Frederick was a noble man. He was not perhaps a man of great strength, yet he was one of considerable perception, discretion and tact. He was a sharp sword with a short blade."

The authorities of Harvard University have applied to Chief Peabody of the department of liberal arts of the world's fair for 7,000 square feet for a thoroughly representative educational exhibit from that historic institution. The officers of the university say they are prepared not only to fill but to splendidly and representatively fill every foot of space which can be granted to them for their educational exhibit, and they accompany their application with a carefully calculated schedule and diagram showing what they are prepared to do in this direction.

They Gave Him Up and He Went to the Hospital.

Smith, of Providence, Couldn't Walk, but Now He Can Race,

And His House Becomes a Mecca for the Folks Who Wear Crutches.

A dispatch from Providence, R. I., says: Frank Smith has had a hard time. Not very long ago he was the owner of a prosperous business in one of the suburbs of Boston.

Now he resides at 165 Richmond street, this city, and he is forced to work for a bare livelihood.

This change of fortune was due primarily to the breaking down of his health and consequent inability to attend to business. On December 11, 1890, Mr. Smith was recommended for admission to the Rhode Island hospital by Dr. Terry. The diagnosis was diabetes. Last September Mr. Smith wrote the following letter, which was published in the Providence papers: "When I was admitted to the Rhode Island hospital, I had a stiffness and pain in my legs and staggered like an old man of 90. I drank at least two gallons of water a day. It was then that I began to lose my sight, and the five doctors that I had told me that I was afflicted with diabetes.

"I tried several medicines that were recommended, but found they did me no good. Seven weeks ago I began using Paine's celery compound, and to-day I can run as well as any man of 50 in this state. For two years I had a tingling in my fingers and toes like lightning that comes from the heart, but Paine's celery compound has got the better of that. May the Lord pour his choicest blessings on the man that discovered this boon. Every man that I see that has an ache or a pain, I tell about this compound. It cures them all.

"There is one old man who lives near me who has been on crutches for a long while. I got him a bottle of the compound and he has already thrown away his crutches.

"Every word of this is true, and I am willing to swear to it before any judge in the world. All my friends wonder how I have picked up and ask me what doctor I have had. I tell them that Paine's celery compound has done all this for me."

In an interview to-day with Mr. Smith, he stated: "The publication of this statement brought so many to see me that my house looked like a hospital. They came limping along with canes, thirty or forty a day, and I tell every one of them that Paine's celery compound will make them well. I know of a great many who have taken my advice and the compound did just what I said it would."

How He Entered.

Inquiry among Mr. Smith's friends shows that he states nothing but facts in regard to his case. Many other instances of the kind are widely talked of here in Providence, where Paine's celery compound has effected cures after physicians had given up hope. Local physicians who have been interviewed agree that it is undoubtedly the most reliable means for curing rheumatism, diseases of the nervous system, kidney troubles.

Physicians in this city prescribe the compound freely, as they are acquainted with its formula and know that it is not a patent medicine. It gives health and strength to the weak and suffering, and has the indorsement of the best people in the community.

Harrison Alarmed About His Lieutenants.

"Slippery Tom" is Causing Him Lots of Trouble.

It Was Not Long Ago That Chairman Carter Was Calling Ben a Two-Cent Hoosier Politician.

Washington, Aug. 10.—If Chairman T. Harrison Carter's ears do not tingle it is because his blood has become congealed by association with the head of the republican presidential ticket. Mr. Carter has been discussed by the New York politicians in a fashion that is not at all calculated to please him. The story is circulating that Mr. Harrison has set a watch on him and that he gets a daily report from a specially detailed secret service man of Mr. Carter's every movement. It is said that the chairman of the republican national committee is actually shadowed by a detective.

Mr. Carter despises Harrison; there is no doubt of it. There are many persons who have heard him speak disparagingly of the president. It would be no exaggeration to state that some of the meanest things ever said of Mr. Harrison have come out of the mouth of the man who is now at the head of the national committee, professedly working to secure his re-election.

Of course, all these things were said prior to Carter's appointment as land commissioner. That appointment made Carter quit talking against the president in the Washington hotel corridors and barrooms and become outwardly an administration man. It would not have been decent for him to do anything else.

How would it have sounded for Mr. Harrison's land commissioner to go about calling his boss a "narrow-minded Presbyterian bigot," a "two-cent Hoosier politician," a "hog from Hogville," and so on?

Then, again, it would not have been safe. Carter would have lost his job if he had done it. So, after the appointment, Carter occasionally gave it out, when he saw it would be worth while, that Mr. Harrison was a "great statesman" and a "true patriot." It would have been like Carter to say such things as these in the presence of persons liable to repeat his words at the White House. Perhaps it was in this way that the president got the idea in his head that Carter looked upon him as a sort of estray from the planet Mars, a man way, way above everybody else in this non-progressive country.

But, what was Carter thinking all this time? Had he changed his estimate of the president, or had he simply put a curb on his speech? The men who know Carter best say that there has been no time since his appointment that he has wavered in the belief that his early characterizations of Mr. Harrison were thoroughly just.

The story is that it was not until after Carter had been some time at the head of the national committee that the president became aware that prior to his appointment as land commissioner he had been one of the bitterest aint-Harrison men in the republican party. This seems almost impossible, but it must be considered that while Carter was simply a congressman from Montana, his contemptuous utterances about the president were not considered of much account and might not have been repeated in the ear of the man against whom they were deliverd. Taking this thory for a basis it is easy to conceive how the president may have been greatly startled when somebody went to him and drew the contrast between Carter before taking the appointment and Carter after taking the appointment. It requires little thought to make a story of the interview that would compare well with the shorthand report, if one was taken.

The informant, after professing great devotion to the republican party, and the deepest personal interest in the president himself, suddenly breaks in with the question, "Mr. President, do you think that you can trust 'Tom' Carter?"

The president is perfectly surprised. Why, Carter is his most devoted admirer, he says.

Pressed to say what makes him think so, the president repeats some of the things that Carter has "let drop" since he became land commissioner, and then adds that to his own face Carter has talked in such terms as to leave no doubt of his loyalty.

Then the informant repeats some of those shocking things that Carter said about the president before he was given his land office job.

"What!" exclaims the president, swelling with anger; "did Tom Carter talk like that?"

"Yes, he talked like that," the informant says, "and, Mr. President, my advice to you is to keep an eye on Tom Carter. I don't believe that he loves you any more than he used to. Further than that, look at the company he keeps. See how thick he is with Clarkson, and Fassett, and all the other Blaine men."

"Except Platt," interjected the president.

"I'm not sure of that," responds the informant. "Who knows that he and Platt are not in constant communication by some underground wire? I tell you, Mr. President, Carter's a slippery fellow. By the way, that reminds me that lots of the people round Washington call him 'Slippery Tom.'"

If some such interview as this took place—and evidence is at hand that it did—it is easy to see how Mr. Harrison's suspicious mind might be completely upset by it. These words—"Slippery Tom"—must have danced before his eyes morning, noon and night, and nobody can begin to imagine the hypothetical problems that must have come into the presidential mind. The logical outcome would be the spy, sent on to New York to watch the suspected chairman day and night to get knowledge of the conferences so as to be able to report when, where and with whom Carter might talk, to do everything that a detective knows how to do in such a case.

It is a strange story, one which is not susceptible of proving, nor yet of disproving, but it is a story that interests the politicians. The prevailing opinion is that there is nothing improbable in the story. Few doubt that the president could consider it beneath him to put a watch on Mr. Carter. There are some who go so far as to say that in the president's place they would do it themselves. Anyhow, true or false, it is an ugly story to be in circulation about the Great Mogul of the fat-frying and fat-distributing apparatus, upon the honest conduct of which, in the interest of the republican candidate for president, so much depends.

IOWA POLITICS.

Convention and a Candidate for Office.

Waverly, Ia., Aug. 10.—The district convention of the democratic party in convention here to-day is having some difficulty in finding a man willing to run for congress against the present republican incumbent, David B. Henderson.

Senator Shields was wanted, but he would not accept, knowing the labor vote would knife him on account of the part he took in the fusion against the Knights of Labor years ago.

Fred O'Donnell, of Dubuque, would be a strong man, but he is going on the bench to succeed Judge Kenehan, and will not permit his name to be used. There is a possibility that the convention will adjourn without making a nomination, but it is more likely that some one will be put up if only to record the democratic strength in the district.

New Hampton, Ia., Aug. 10.—The republican convention of the Fourth congressional district met here this afternoon. The district has gone democratic for a number of terms, but the republicans think they have a good chance of carrying it this year. The principal candidates whose names have so far been considered are James E. Blythe, ex-Gov. Larrabee, ex-Congressman Fuller and Thomas Updegraff.

HE WAS A PLUNGER.

When They Opened His Books They Found a Shortage.

Huntington, L. I., Aug. 10.—It is alleged that Hulett Scudder, the young real estate agent of this place, who disappeared a week ago last Tuesday, is a defaulter.

His business was apparently a prosperous one, but he became addicted to poker playing and race betting and was soon known as a "plunger." His luck turned, however, and he is known to have lost quite heavily.

Yesterday Scudder's safe was opened and his books examined. The examination has not yet been completed, but those in a position to know say there is little likelihood of Scudder's return for he would be arrested at once. It is said that trust funds, given him as assignee, are missing, as well as returns for sales of property.

Dr. W. B. Gibson, his intimate friend, has also disappeared and while some fear Scudder's suicide, the majority believe him to be in Canada with Gibson, who formerly resided there.

THE REMAINS OF RIGGIN.

Appropriate Ceremonies to be Held in Philadelphia.

Philadelphia, Aug. 10.—It is expected that the body of Boatswain's Mate Chas. W. Riggin, the American sailor who was murdered by the Chilians on the streets of Valparaiso, will arrive in this city to-day or to-morrow.

Naval post, 400, of this city, intends to give a patriotic reception to the remains of their late companion, and a detachment of sailors from the United States ship St. Louis now lying in the harbor, have been detailed to escort the body from the ship to Independence hall where it will lie in state until Sunday next, when the remains will be interred with military honors.

Invitations have been sent to every Grand Army post and every camp of Sons of Veterans in the city to be present at the funeral.

KILLED WHILE AT WORK.

Huntington, Pa., Aug. 10.—While working on the rock at the quarry of H. H. Swope at Mapleton to-day, a premature fall of rock occurred, burying Samuel Pell and other workmen. Pell was instantly killed, but the others escaped.

Annual Session Being Held in Cleveland.

A Nice Program Mapped Out for the Two-Days' Meeting—Large Attendance.

Cleveland, O., Aug. 10.—(Special)—The fourth annual convention of the Ohio Building Association League was called to order this morning at the Hollenden by President A. A. Winters, of Dayton. The association was formed four years ago, its objects being the furtherance of the mutual interests of the building companies of the state, which number about 800, and represent assets aggregating $60,000,000 and a membership list of 225,000. The sessions will last two days.

The executive committee of the league met at 10 o'clock this morning, and an hour later the first session of the association began.

About 140 delegates are in attendance, but the visitors brought to the city by the occasion number nearly 500, as representatives of the various companies and associations are welcome to all sessions, although only the delegates have a voice in the proceedings.

Mayor Rose welcomed the visitors. The afternoon session began at 2:30 o'clock, when the first order of business was the president's annual address. To-morrow the delegates will probably go to Put-in-Bay, holding business sessions on the boat going and returning. The headquarters for the delegates is at the Hollenden, where the following ladies and gentlemen were registered last night: Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Binzer and daughters, Dr. and Mrs. J. W. McGarvey, J. ### Crop Reports and Weather Bulletins —All the Commercial News of Interest.

The receipts of wheat to-day at Minneapolis and Duluth are 188,422 bu., and at five other western points 1,070,459 bu., aggregate 1,258,871 bu. On the corresponding Wednesday in 1891 the receipts were 1,010,202 bu., with only 74,453 bu. of northwest wheat. Excess to-day over 1891, 248,679 bu.

The export clearances yesterday at four Atlantic ports were: Wheat, 589,561 bu.; flour to an aggregate of 700,000 bu.

English markets are dull and lower for wheat, and steady for corn.

Bradstreet's makes the visible supply of wheat east of the Rockies increased 1,656,000 bu. On the Pacific coast wheat increased 237,000 bu. Corn decreased 252,000 bu. Oats increased 333,000 bu.

The two sides in wheat and corn must have their innings in the current news, apparently. On the Chicago exchange the hot winds and want of rain have, doubtless, been very distressing, and have threatened disaster to the corn crop.

Of course dealers also beame hot and prices followed the mercury, but the welcome rains have come and the signal office says that the hot winds have ended. The outlook, therefore, is more lovely.

In Ohio, Kentucky, Missouri, Illinois and Nebraska, as we believe in Kansas, the prospect is fair for a corn crop, and of course under that of last year.

But with the old corn yet in farmers' hands, we are not likely to be pinched for a fair supply.

The official estimate of the Illinois wheat crop gives 32,000,000 bus winter wheat. The government report of the crop of 1891 gave an aggregate of winter and spring wheat of 35,000,000 bus.

Bradstreets statement gives a net increase in wheat on both coasts of only 1,419,000 bus, instead of 2,088,000 bus as stated by the New York compilation.

The price of wheat last year, from August 1st, ranged from 90c to 92 1-2c on the 10th. From the 10th to the market steadily advanced to $1.07 1-2 on the 15th which was the zenith price here on that crop. The price went back to and hovered around $1.80 for some time. Is the price to-day cheap enough? That's the burning question. Everybody says it is, but vox populi is not always reliable. In wheat "white man am very uncertain."

To-day's Liverpool quotation equals 97 1-4c per bu. A water, freight and other expenses are 16 1-4c, leaving 81c for the wheat in Toledo. That looks well enough on paper if there was a good demand for the wheat, but there is not.

Then the London quotation is way out of line and equals only 91 1-2c bu. Dealers are entitled to form their own opinion.

In this connection it will not do to forget that the harvest in the northwest has commenced, and before very many days the movement of new wheat thence will supplement the old.

The wheat markets to-day have shown but little change from yesterday's closing. The discouraging early report of English markets and the break in corn started prices 1-4 to 3-8c lower all along the line, but good business was developed and the little loss was recovered, and prices continued with very narrow fluctuations, near yesterday's line of closing.

Corn broke off at opening on reports of more favorable weather in Kansas and declined 1 1-8c. Later the loss was recovered and prices remained rather steady with the turn in buyers favor.

Foreign markets were all reported as closing lower. In New York, August wheat closed at 83 5-8c, a gain of 1-8c, September at 84 1-4c unchanged. August corn at 61 3-8c and September 59 3-8c, both unchanged. August oats 39 1-4c, a gain of 1-2c.

In Chicago, August wheat closed at 78 3-8c, a gain of 1-8c. September at 78 1-2c, a gain of 1-4c. September oats at 34 1-2c, a gain of 3-4c.

In Toledo the business of the day presentes a contrast with that of yesterday. Wheat futures were dull. Prices were lower at the start, and while the loss was nearly regained, the market continued quiet and rather dull. On the regular board August and September wheat opened at a loss of 1-2c and December 5-8c. Later the loss was recovered, but closing prices were 1-4c lower than yesterday all around. On the call August wheat sold at 79 3-4 to 79 7-8; September at 79 7-8 to 80, closing at 79 7-8 and 80. On the regular board August sold at 80 to 80 1-2 and closed at 80 1-4; September sold at 80 to 80 1-2, and closed at 80 1-4.

December sold at 83 1-4 to 83 3-8c and closed at 83 1-4c, a loss of 1-4c all around. Cash wheat was in good demand for both No. 2 and 3 soft. Sales of 100,000 bus. Offers from the seaboard were under our market, but they contine to take it, and continue to export it. No. 2 soft sold at 80c to 80 1-2c and closed at 80 1-4c, a loss of 1-4c. No. 3 soft sold at 74 3-4c to 75 1-2c and closed at 75c. No. 4 soft 70 1-2c to 70c. No. 2 red and winter at 78 1-2c. No. 2 white at 78c.

Corn—No. 2 at 52c, No. 3 at 50c, September at 52c.

Weather and Crops.

Temperature—The week was slightly cooler than usual in the Gulf States and on the Pacific coast, the deficiency in temperature exceeding two degrees only in Central and Southern Texas. About the normal temperature conditions prevailed over the lower lakes, Ohio valley and Middle Atlantic States. From the central and upper Mississippi valley westward to the Rocky mountains the week was unusually warm, especially over Kansas, Eastern Nebraska and Western Missouri, where the average daily excess in temperature amounted to from six degrees to nine degrees.

The weather of the past week has not materially affected the seasonal temperature to the eastward of the Mississippi, where it is now nearly normal, but from the Central Mississippi valley westward to the Rocky mountains the seasonal deficiencies have been reduced by the abnormally high temperature of the past week.

Precipitation—Over nearly the whole of the United States the past week has been given but little rain and over a very extensive area, including portions of the Dakotas, Nebraska, Kansas, Iowa, Missouri, Arkansas, western Tennessee, Indian territory and northern Texas there was no rain at all, nor has any appreciable amount fallen on the Pacific coast, but in the last named region only the normal conditions have prevailed.

The seasonal rainfall from March 1 to date continues in excess over the central valleys, lake region and portions of the Gulf and Middle Atlantic states; it is deficient on the south Atlantic coast and in Texas. The greatest excess in the seasonal rainfall exists in the upper Mississippi valley, and the greatest deficiency in Texas.

HOW DR. TALMAGE TRAVELS.

By Compounding a Special Language He Manages to Get Along.

Many Americans abroad are exceedingly annoyed at their lack of skill in the use of the European languages, writes the Rev. T. De Witt Talmage in the August Ladies' Home Journal. After a vain attempt to make a Parisian waiter understand French they swear at him in English. But I have always remembered when traveling abroad the art of the physician who put all the remains of old prescriptions into one bottle—the oil and the calomel and the rhubarb and the asafoetida—and when he found a patient with a "complication of diseases," he would shake up his old bottle and give him a dose. And so I have compounded a language for European travel.

I generally take a little French, and a little German, and a little English, with a few snatches of Chinese and Choctaw, and when I find a stubborn case of waiter or landlord that will not understand, I simply shake up all the dialects and give him a dose. It is sure to strike somewhere. If you cannot make him understand, you at any rate give him a terrible scare.

I never had the anxiety of some in a strange land about getting things to eat. I like everything in all the round of diet except animated cheese and odorous codfish; always have a good appetite; never in my life missed a meal save once, when I could not get any, and knowing that "eine gerostete rindfleisch schiebe" means a beefsteak, "eine messer" a knife, and "eine gabel" a fork, and "eine serviette" a napkin, after that I feel perfectly reckless as to what I can or cannot get.

DIDN'T CATCH ON.

Chief of Police—I have heard no previous complaints against Officer Gray. This is the first intimation I have had that he has failed in any of his duties.

Inspector—I didn't say he was shirking. I said he didn't exactly seem to catch on to his business, somehow.

"In what way?"

"Well, he's been on the beat four weeks now and the fellows at the corner fruit stands say he hasn't swiped a banana nor lifted even a peanut in all that time, and the boys have begun to guy him, you know."—Chicago Tribune.

PHYSICAL TRAINING.

What It Is Doing for the Woman of the Period.

The physical training of women has received a very great impetus of late years, and we may see the result in their notably increased stature and beauty. That women are much taller and better developed than they used to be is an incontestable fact, and this is undoubtedly owing to the greater amount of exercise and open-air life that is now the fashion for the fin-de-siecle maiden.

A girl of the period belongs to her gymnasium, which is fitted up with all the luxury of appointments in the way of baths, dressing rooms, etc., that are to be found in the athletic club to which her brother belongs.

She has her fencing lessons, her Delsartean contortions, her ballet dancing lessons and other fads of the day, which are all, nevertheless, decided aids to the development of her physique. Moreover, she spends a good part of her time out of doors, as a matter of course; and all this despite her late hours and the excitement of fashionable life, has produced its effect.

It is constantly remarked as each new bevy of debutantes are introduced in their world: "How tall and large the girls are nowadays!" And if it is true as physicians assure us, that healthy, physical development and the consequent making of good blood assists mental development, what may we not hope for in the future in the way of race development?

Unfortunately, however, while this physical training and open air life has become fashionable among the few, the great majority of American women are still indoor creatures, their only exercise for week in and week out being the daily routine of household tasks in the pent-up air of kitchen and bed room. While many find time for a greater or less degree of intellectual culture, they almost invariably neglect their physical training, the result being that, as a rule, the American women (represented by the majority), is still a delicate, fragile creature, becoming prematurely aged and broken down almost without an effort, unable to bear the strain on nerves and brain that it is the lot of most women to endure.

Men should look to this; the remedy lies in their hands more even than in those of women. Let the farmers realize that the majority of the inmates of the insane asylums are women from the farms; let them see to it that their wives and daughters have more time for outdoor life and recreation, and know that it is better to pay the wages of a "hired girl" than a long doctor's bill or to have a broken down invalid for a wife. In these days of cheap, good, ready-made clothing, let the women give up their dressmaking and eternal stitchery, and learn to feel the physical pleasure and exhilaration of exercise in the delicious air which the "city folks" go so far to enjoy, and which to them is almost an unknown quantity.

"You Yorkers seem mighty fond of the beach," said an old woman who lived barely a quarter of a mile from the ocean, to one of her summer boarders. "I don't keer much for it myself; in fact, I hain't seen it for forty years, I guess, not since I was a girl when I went down to see a big whale brought in. Father was one of the life-saving men, and he promised me a new dress if they caught it, and naturally I felt interested."—New York Tribune.

HEADACHE AND DYSPEPSIA.

William E. Rockwell, No. 512 West 57th street, New York, says:

"I have been a martyr to bilious headache and dyspepsia. Any indiscretion in diet, over-fatigue or cold, brings on a fit of indigestion, followed by a headache lasting two or three days at a time. I think I must have tried over twenty different remedies, which were recommended as certain cures by loving friends, but it was no use. At last I thought I would take a simple course of purgation with Brandreth's Pills. For the first week I took two pills every night, then one pill for thirty nights; in that time I gained three pounds in weight, and never have had an ache or pain since."

Disease in one part of the body will eventually fill the whole body with disease. Every year or two some part of the system grows weak and begins to decay. Such part should be removed at once, and new matter be allowed to take its place. There's no need of cutting it out with a surgeon's scalpel. Purge away the old, diseased and worn-out parts with Brandreth's Pills.

REGULARS OF DUTY.

"I want to show you the effect of constant training," said a local military enthusiast.

We were standing on Whitehall street.

"You see those two regulars from McPherson barracks coming this way," said he, pointing toward two private soldiers from the barracks. They were walking very rapidly, but with as regular a step as though on dress parade.

"Now watch them. I will give a command as they come up and I'll bet a cigar they instinctively obey it."

"It's a bet."

Just as they passed us my companion in a deep, commanding voice said:

As quick as a flash the regulars wheeled to the curbstone. Then they caught themselves, looked around, smiled and went on.—Atlanta Constitution.

BAD ECZEMA ON BABY

Head One Solid Sore. Itching Awful. Had to Tie His Hands to Cradle. Cured by Cuticura.

Our little boy broke out on his head with a bad form of eczema, when he was four months old. We tried three doctors, but they did not help him. We then used your three CUTICURA REMEDIES, and after using them eleven weeks exactly according to directions, he began to steadily improve, and after the use of them for seven months his head was entirely well. When we began using it his head was a solid sore from the crown to his eyebrows. It was also all over his ears, most of his face, and small places on different parts of his body. There were sixteen weeks that we had to keep his hands tied to the cradle and hold them when he was taken up; and had to keep mittens tied on his hands to keep his finger nails out of the sores, as he would scratch if he could in any way get his hands loose. We know your CUTICURA REMEDIES cured him. We feel safe in recommending them to others.

SUN AND SUNBURN.

Simple Remedies That Are Good Things to Remember.

Persons with sensitive complexions often experience considerable suffering from simple sunburn. The remedy in such cases is care in protecting the complexion in midday, and the use of some simple lotion to heal the blistered and irritated skin. One of the best unguents for this purpose is a cold cream made of almond oil or of sweet olive oil. A simple camphor ice rubbed over the flesh is also efficacious, and a single application will often bring relief in a night.

Where one is certain to be exposed to a strong sun in riding or rowing, it does no harm to make some preparation for it. Do this in exactly the same way that you protect your face from the wind in the winter. Rub the skin with a simple soft cream, and, if you wish, powder it well. Wipe off any surplus powder or oil, and when you come in cleanse the complexion thoroughly with warm water and a little pure Castile soap, if it does not irritate your skin.

It is impossible to give advice in a case like this at all, as certain complexions are especially sensitive to some one ingredient which is soothing to others. Glycerine is extremely irritating to many complexions because of the tendency it has to dry the skin. This may be partly overcome by mixing it with a certain amount of rose water. But a simple cold cream, the recipe for which was given in these columns, is one of the most suitable and harmless things that can be put upon the skin, furnishing the pores as it does with needed nourishment; and there are very few complexions, except oily ones, with which it does not agree. Oily complexions need no lotion of any kind, but they should be wiped with cologne and dusted with some simple powder to remedy this defect, which becomes a painful disfigurement in warm weather.

It is a great mistake to expose the complexion unnecessarily in summer. All the tonic effects of country air and life may be enjoyed without parching the skin or turning it brown with tan. The positive injury done to the skin in a single season by carelessness does more to increase wrinkles and turn the individual old before her time than all the harmless lotions in the world will remedy. The rule in all cases is care. An ample hat or sun-shade which protects the face is an essential part of the summer outfit.

Our ancestors laid great stress on this point, but they staid indoors too much. They knew few of the present joys of outdoor athletics. In the reaction of the present time, which demands greater outdoor freedom for women, we may have gone too far in miscaking the bronzed checks for the certain signs of health. A complexion soft and pure as the lily may accompany as robust a physique as one tanned in the winds of March or bronzed in the sun of August. —New York Tribune.

Like a ship without a rudder is a man or a woman without health and the necessary strength to perform the ordinary duties of life. When the appetite fails, when debility, and a disordered condition of the stomach, liver, kidney, and bowel assail you, take Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

A THRILLING ADVENTURE.

Threatened With Death by Fire and Big Herd of Buffalo.

"I had an experience in Nebraska in 1856, that I can see yet whenever I shut my eyes," said Major Tom Stephens, at the Lindell. "I piloted a party of emigrants across the plains, and was returning alone to the Missouri. It was a trifle risky, but my business was urgent, and I was so well mounted that I had little fear of Indians. It was in the latter part of September, and there had been no rain for two months, the tall grass being like so much tinder. One night I camped on a small tributary of the Middle Loup. It was a small, spring-fed rivulet, destitute of timber and almost hidden by the rank grass. I had not slept long when I was awakened by the neighing of my horse, and was horrified to find the prairie to the south of me afire and a strong wind sweeping it down upon me. I mounted and started for the Loup, some five miles north, but before half the distance was covered my horse put his foot in a hole, fell and broke his leg. The fire hemmed me in by a semi-circle and was coming on with terrible rapidity. The whole heavens seemed to be a sheet of roaring flame. I thought sure I was done for. I have heard that men brought face to face with death remember every evil deed of their lives, but I simply stood there in the dry grass and watched the sublime spectacle. I felt that my doom was sealed and deliberately waited for it. Suddenly a new danger confronted me. A vast herd of buffalo, flying before the fire, was bearing down upon me. I was to be trampled to death and cremated afterward! As the vast mass came thundering on I instinctively started and ran. Several deer went scurrying by me, and I fancied I could feel the hot breath of the herd of buffalo on the back of my neck. I was suddenly thrown into the air and landed lengthwise across the back of a big bull. I fastened my fingers in his shaggy coat and managed to bestride him, and thus mounted I was carried to the Loup river, where I was thrown off by the branches of a tree. I managed to swing to it, however, and thus saved myself from being trampled to death. The herd plunged across the shallow river, and I took refuge from the approaching flames in its muddy waters. Three days later I was picked up, more dead than alive, by an emigrant train. I spent, first and last, more that fifteen years on the plains, and had many close calls, but that midnight ride on a buffalo's back, with the Loup river in front and the fires of Gehenna roaring in the rear, was, I think, about as remarkable as any of the inventions of the yellow back literati."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

SIGHT DRAFTS.

The sight draft is an institution almost, if not entirely, peculiar to this country, and I think myself it is one of the most unfortunate of commercial customs. I know one man whose signature is good for almost any amount, but who will never honor a sight draft.

If he is notified that one has been drawn on him he promptly remits by certified check or bankers' draft and lets the sight draft go to protest. As a result his credit has been ruined at one hundred banks and his rating is comparatively poor.

It is utterly unjust to condemn a man for refusing to honor one of these instruments, as they can be drawn upon without any reason whatever, and without the slightest evidence of indebtedness.

Banks have again and again agitated the question of refusing to accept a draft for collection without prepayment of charges; but this has not been done, and at the present time money is actually lost in this branch of the business.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.
